President Nixon Studies Response

'One Shot'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon said today all available evidence supports the North Korean claim it shot down a huge U.S. Navy reconnaissance plane over the Sea of Japan. There apparently were no survivors, it added.

An earlier statement reported a Soviet ship, assisting in the massive sea and air search for the EC121, had recovered what it described as airplane parts, but none of the 31 crewmen, in the sea 120 miles off the North Korean coast.

"All evidence now available to us, including North Korean claims and debris sightings, leads us to believe that the aircraft was shot down by North Korean aircraft," the later statement said.

Read by Pentagon spokesman Daniel Z. Henkin, it offered no details on how the plane was destroyed, whether by aircraft cannon fire or plane-launched missiles.

The 3½-page statement also avoided any discussion of political or diplomatic ramifications. It was read as President Nixon was meeting with the National Security Council.

North Korean radio broadcasts monitored in Tokyo said the intelligence-gathering plane intruded into North Korean airspace. The Pentagon denied it, saying the plane had been ordered to get no closer than 50 nautical miles to North Korea which claims 12-mile territorial waters.

Henkin said the flight, and others like it, was approved by "high government authorities in the State and Defense Departments, the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the White House."

In its later statement, it amplified its contention the plane never entered North Korean airspace saying: "From a variety of sources, some of them sensitive, we are able to confirm that at all times during its mission the aircraft was far outside any claimed territorial air space of North Korea."

The Japanese Defense Agency said earlier today an American military radar in South Korea spotted a falling U.S. plane after it made contact with intercepting North Korean fighters.

The report said the plane was seen contacting the North Korean plane over the Sea of Japan about 150 miles southeast of Chongjin, a North Korean port.

Pentagon sources said the four-propeller, unarmed aircraft flying out of Atsugi, Japan, was monitoring North Korean radio messages and studying radar stations in its air defenses. Henkin called it a routine reconnaissance mission.

"Reconnaissance missions of this type have been flown for more than 20 years in the Sea of Japan," he said. "There was nothing unusual about this mission." But he gave no detail.

Henkin maintained the plane's mission was "a lawful use of international air space."

Henkin said the 300 m.p.h. craft, too slow to escape the supersonic MIG aircraft possessed Debris in the Sea of Japan was sighted (A) by a U.S. aircraft Tuesday after a Navy reconnaissance plane was reported missing nearby (B). The area is near where the USS Pueblo was captured last year (C).

HONG KONG (AP) — North Vietnam's official radio today congratulated the North Korean air force on "its glorious achievement in shooting down with only one shot a marauding U.S. spy plane that intruded North Korean airspace."

Radio Hanoi said loss of the plane with 31 Americans aboard "shows that the U.S. aggressors learned nothing from the loss of the Pueblo, the American intelligence ship captured off the coast of North Korea 15 months ago."

"After the Pueblo," Radio Hanoi said, "former President Johnson promised that the United States would not again send spies against the Peoples Republic of North Korea."

"But American aggressors violated their promise and now they have paid the price of 31 of their men."

The broadcast said the loss of the "very big and very sophisticated spy plane to a vigilant unit of the North Korean air force is proof that the United States cannot continue to ignore the repeated warnings of the People's Republic of Korea that it is capable and will defend its territory against American Aggressors."

Bergstrom Says It's Ready To be Annexed to Neenah

BY PETER GENIESSE

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

NEENAH — A 350-acre parcel, containing the converting divisions and main office buildings of Bergstrom Paper Co., valued well in excess of $4 million, will be annexed to the city of Neenah.

Bergstrom officials announced today that the firm intends to file a petition for annexation of its Town of Neenah properties, located along U.S. 41, southwest of Neenah.

City officials who had eyed the industrial acreage for years, were elated at the announcement. Town of Neenah Chairman Laurel Heaney declined to comment, saying he first wanted to speak to Bergstrom officials.

Bergstrom President H. R. Moore, in his announcement, also suggested the entire Town of Neenah be brought into the city.

"This is the best thing that could possibly happen to the city of Neenah," Mayor Donald Hassler remarked.

"Not only will the city realize the additional tax base and revenues from the present Bergstrom properties, but it should also open up opportunities for other development in that area," Hassler said.

Bergstrom started its complex along U.S. 41 in 1947 with the construction of a warehouse. When the firm's downtown Neenah plant became inadequate to handle production, needs, the converting division and main office were moved to the Town of Neenah location.

The original tract contained more than 400 acres. Menasha Corporation moved its headquarters to an adjoining site about four years ago and a smaller parcel was sold to Mid-America Tag and Label Corporation. The city of Neenah recently annexed the Mid-America property.

An executive of Menasha Corp., which operates a sizable corrugated carton plant, declined to comment on the Bergstrom announcement. He said Wayne Bryan, Neenah public works director, had discussed possible annexation with company officials several weeks ago and understood the Menasha Corp. position.

Bryan recalled this morning that officials of the firm had described the possible annexation as "a question of dollars," and would annex "when they could afford it."

He recalled giving a report recently to the city's public works committee that said, in effect, that both Menasha Corp. and Bergstrom believed "annexation might some day come to pass but they did not believe it was particularly imminent."

Based on that belief, Bryan said today he was "very surprised" that Bergstrom has made its decision so soon.

Bryan said he would not have expected it "for a couple of months yet," or longer.

Moore said today, "We have long recognized that Neenah is a fast growing community. Our long-range planning envisioned movement by the city to a point where it would be on our doorstep," he said.

"That time has come," Moore added, "Continued growth and development of our site will require municipal services for water, sewer, police and fire protection."

"Recent enactment of the so-called shoreline zoning ordinance, encompassing water contiguous lands outside of municipal boundaries into restricted uses, now inhibits our land use in the Township of Neenah," Moore stated.

"Long zoned by Winnebago County as a heavy industry site, the shoreline ordinance implementation declared our property on either side of the Neenah slough to be a game habitat. This restrictive action is manifestly at variance with industrial development of our investment," he added.

"It also created an undue hardship on our growth potential as well as the economic development of our community."

Moore stated, "In our opinion, the best interests of our community's development would be served by incorporation of the whole Town of Neenah into the City of Neenah by consolidation under the provision of Wisconsin's statutes at section 66.02, by referendum.

Cambodia, U.S. To Resume Ties

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodia's chief of state said today he would resume diplomatic relations with the United States now that the U.S. government has recognized Cambodia's frontiers.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk said charges d'affaires would be exchanged, a step short of exchanging ambassadors again.

"We thank the United States, President Nixon and the great American people for this gesture of equity and justice toward Cambodia," said the prince.

Sihanouk hedged this with an expression of hope that American maps soon would show disputed islands off the Cambodia coast as part of Cambodia and not Vietnam. "This is my only reservation for the future," he said, adding if this "rank error" persists, it would remove all value from the statement recognizing Cambodia's frontiers.

The Saigon government swung into line with its allies in Washington. The South Vietnamese said they were "ready to reconsider" their frontier problems with Cambodia, their neighbor on South Vietnam's southwest.

A communique from the South Vietnamese Foreign Ministry lauded the statement last Saturday in which the U.S. government said it recognized "the sovereignty, independence, neutrality and territorial integrity of the kingdom of Cambodia within its present frontiers."

The South Vietnamese statement did not go this far but said Saigon "is ready to reconsider the problem concerning the two countries and welcomes any suggestion suitable to the two countries' interest."

"The Republic of Vietnam," it continued, "advocates establishing diplomatic relations with free countries in the world and particularly with neighboring countries."

Relations between South Vietnam and Cambodia were broken off after Ngo Dinh Diem became president in 1955.

As the pace of the Vietnam war picked up, Cambodia accused U.S. and South Vietnamese forces of repeatedly violating its border, while the United States and South Vietnam accused Cambodia of giving sanctuary to Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops. Cambodia broke relations with Washington in 1965.

In some areas the border between South Vietnam and Cambodia is poorly defined, and both countries claim ownership of some islands in the Gulf of Thailand.

After years of denying and minimizing the presence of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in Cambodia, Sihanouk recently expressed alarm at their buildup in his country.

Sihanouk said Cambodia wished to remain neutral but that its political evolution would depend on outside events.

"We want to remain friends with China, North Vietnam, and the National Liberation Front," he said. "We remain anti-imperialist and we will always support the four points of Hanoi and the five points of the NLF." These are the terms of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front for ending the war in Vietnam.

The prince announced the Cambodian Embassy in Laos is being closed, but the diplomatic relations are not being broken. He said Laos had not recognized Cambodia's frontiers.

"If the Laotians want to take from us the providence of Stung Treng, it is war," he said.

Prague Students Join Strike To Protest New Restrictions

PRAGUE (AP) — Agricultural students boycotted classes today to protest renewed censorship, official interference in sport and "strengthening of Soviet military forces in Czechoslovakia."

A strike proclamation also protested "the demonstration of military strength before an important party session." The strike was scheduled to run through Thursday, when the 190-member central committee of the Communist Party holds a crisis session.

The proclamation was posted briefly in Prague's central Wenceslas Square, but a policeman tore it down. Scores of passers-by read the statement and one man penciled a line under the demand in it for an election, postponed by the Soviet invasion last August.

No classes were meeting at the modernistic agricultural college outside Prague. About 300 students were printing posters and leaflets or holding meetings.

The strikers said they wanted "to prove to ourselves and the public that we are not yet morally dead."

Czechoslovak authorities announced last weekend an increase of the Soviet occupation forces but later canceled the announcement because of what they called "changed circumstances."

Today's strike proclamation, however, could also be referring to reports of troop movements never officially confirmed.

A week of Warsaw Pact ground maneuvers was held shortly after the outbreak of the Czechoslovak political crisis and three days of Warsaw Pact air defense exercises were scheduled to end today.

Interference in sports referred to the Communist Party's so far unsuccessful attempt to persuade Czechoslovakia to participate in the annual bicycle "peace race," normally held between Warsaw, East Berlin and Prague.

Despite the strike statement by the agricultural college, the students did not appear to be planning street demonstrations. An unofficial warning was circulated earlier this month that demonstrations would be curbed by gunfire and tanks if necessary.

The Czech Council of Trade Unions issued a strong complaint today that all Czechoslovaks are being blamed for the March 28-29 anti-Soviet demonstrations.

Tornado Kills At Least 1,000

Pakistani Workers Go Through Rubble Looking for More

DACCA, East Pakistan (AP) — The stench of death hung over villages on the outskirts of Dacca today as rescue workers dug out more bodies and the estimated death toll in Monday's killer tornado rose to 1,000.

More than 500 persons were killed in the industrial suburb of Demra alone.

Hospitals sent out an urgent appeal for blood donors. Doctors and nurses struggled to cope with a continuous flood of thousands of injured students of Dacca University went into the countryside in trucks and helped troops bring back piles of bodies wrapped in white sheets.

The tornado scythed in late Monday afternoon from the Bay of Bengal and just missed Dacca, the capital of East Pakistan and a city famous for its many ancient mosques. The twister first hit Demra, then roared on into the countryside, leaving a trail of destruction through 30 villages.

Electric power flickered on and off last night as engineers tried to cope with damaged power lines. There was a severe shortage of drinking water in many areas. Fifteen relief camps were opened in hardest hit districts to supply food, medicine and cash. President Agha Yahya Khan ordered a million rupees—$218,000—made available for relief work.

"It was doomsday," said a worker in a Demra textile mill, Abdul Farah. "We thought there was no escape from it."

"With some other workers I sought safety in the staff quarters at our mill. But even the concrete roof of this building was blown off in the wind. When the tornado had passed we came out and saw people lying dead all over the place."

Winneconne Soldier Dies In Vietnam

WINNECONNE—Army Spec 4 Edward V. Eiden, route 1, has been killed in Vietnam, his parents learned this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Eiden, were notified Monday that their son died last Friday when enemy mortar fire struck his artillery firing position. He had been stationed at Dong Tom with the 9th Infantry Division.

Eiden was born in Appleton Feb. 14, 1948, and lived in Winneconne and Outagamie counties all his life. He attended Washington High School at New London and had worked for Larsen Canning Co., Hortonville, and Colt Manufacturing Co., Winneconne. He entered the Army in March, 1968.

His body will be sent to Mueller Funeral Home at Winneconne, where arrangements are pending.

Babies Starve to Death in Capital, Senators Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — The senators continued their special Senate hunger committee study of Washington. They held a hearing at a movie theater in the heart of the capital's Negro slums.

Mrs. Harris said "the shocking evidence" behind her statement "is the fact that the District of Columbia, seat of the most powerful and richest nation on Earth, has been shown in a study several years ago to have the highest rate of infant mortality in the country, except for the state of Mississippi."

"We know that children are beginning school already badly retarded in their mental development because their families could not afford to feed them adequately during the first three or four critical years of their lives," she added.

Mrs. Harris said in addition, "Thousands upon thousands of our older citizens, barely subsisting on meager monthly stipends, go without adequate food for days and weeks on end, feed themselves a failure to growing weak and ill and, in too many cases, finally dying."

"She testified that these facts are made even more shocking and more tragic by the fact that a government-sponsored food assistance program—the food stamp program—which pre-pends to help these poor people feed themselves is a failure to growing weak and ill and, in too many cases, finally dying."

"If the Laotians want to take from us the providence of Stung Treng, it is war," he said.

Participation in Private School Pupil Busing Short of Expectations

Program Under Constitutional Change Cost Extra $4 Million

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — About 28.5 percent of the state's private and parochial school pupils were transported to their schools in the 1968-69 school year, the State Department of Public Instruction reported in the first summary of experience under the new Wisconsin law which made such pupils eligible for public transportation service through amendment of the state constitution.

The number of children in non-public school programs benefiting from public transportation was put at 66,064.

But Theodore Sorenson, the department's supervisor of the transportation, said the total was less than he had estimated, and that the figure this year is likely to be lower, because of the trend for the closing of parochial school programs and the transfer of their enrollments to the public schools.

UWGB Funding Low on List

Regents Summarize Necessities in Bid to Regain $20 Million

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Start-up costs for the Green Bay and Parkside branch campuses have been given last place among absolute budget necessities being requested of the legislature by the University of Wisconsin's central administration.

A $2.3 million request for the funds for the new campuses, only a part of the start-up money originally requested of the Legislative Joint Finance Committee, has been placed at the bottom of a $20 million group outlined to the finance unit.

Making the allocation of priorities was the central administration headed by UW President Fred Harvey Harrington.

The list was supplied to the finance committee late Tuesday in preparation for a special appeal planned today for the restoration of part of the $39 million in funds cut from the UW budget recommended by Gov. Warren P. Knowles.

The finance committee's action came last week. At that time $5 million was trimmed from the new campus budget requests.

Meet Workload

But the new campuses were allocated about $9.3 million to meet additional workload costs caused by the arrival of new students during the coming two years.

No such allocations were made for the remainder of the system.

In response the UW Board of Regents Friday asked the central administration to seek the restoration of those funds considered absolutely necessary for the continued operation of the UW and set that figure at about $20 million.

The central administration, to the unhappiness of some finance committee members Tuesday, submitted a priority ranking of the entire $39 million.

A computation of cumulative total shows that the dividing line under the regent directive falls at the ninth ranked priority item, the $2.3 million for the new campuses.

Much farther down the list, in the 27th position, is a request for $2.4 million in "phase 2" start-up funds for the new campuses.

Objected to Listing

Assemblyman John Shabaz, R-New Berlin, spoke for the conservative majority of the committee Tuesday when he objected to the full $39 million in listings.

The UW was invited back before the finance committee to outline "a few millions" in absolute priority needs, he said.

It is thought unlikely that the entire $20 million asked by the regents will be restored.

But it is also thought unlikely that cuts within that total will be made by simply trimming from the bottom of the list.

Some additional start-up funds may be possible, but the low priority assigned by the central administration makes it unlikely that much will be forthcoming from the finance committee.

Regent President Charles G. Latt, of La Crosse, and Harrington Friday told the regents that students at the new campuses were comparatively well cared for under the committee's budget, considering the deep cuts made to the rest of the system by the finance committee.

Those Who Refuse Jobs Could Lose Relief Payments

MADISON (AP) — Cutting off relief payments for able-bodied persons who refuse jobs or job training was recommended by senators at a public hearing Tuesday.

Proponents said the measure would encourage welfare recipients to break their dependency on relief.

"We've got to get these people self-supporting," Sen. Nile W. Soik, a Whitefish Bay Republican, told the Senate Public Welfare Committee.

Soik said his bill is not aimed at recipients of aid to dependent children, the blind or the disabled. It would not dictate that recipients who refuse jobs be removed from welfare rolls, he said.

"It would still be up to the local relief officials, but we want to give them some guidance," he said.

Sen. Wayne F. Whitlow, D-Milwaukee, criticized the present system for "breeding indigents."

He said he knew of a case in which a man quit a $1.60 an hour job because it was easier to go on welfare.

Soviet, U.S. Officials Talked at Ike's Funeral

Report Laird and Gen. Wheeler Had Conversations With Marshal V. I. Chukov

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — An example of highly unofficial, highly secret contacts now in progress between top U.S. and Soviet officials came during the Eisenhower funeral here when a leading Soviet defense official conferred with American policy-makers in the heart of the Pentagon.

Marshal Vasily I. Chukov, assistant minister of defense and an official Soviet representative at Gen. Eisenhower's funeral, slipped, unnoticed, across the Potomac for a long visit at the Pentagon. Accompanied by the military attache of the Soviet embassy, Chukov conferred at length with both Melvin R. Laird, Secretary of Defense, and Gen. Earle P. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Although what actually was said is top secret, the Russian marshal and Laird did more than engage in small talk. It is known that there was cordial, if not wholly productive, conversation about the intentions of Moscow in its present build-up of offensive missiles. In fact, the question of intentions was first raised by Chukov.

The marshal also discussed substantive issues in an hour-long conversation with Gen. Wheeler, but they engaged in soldierly amenities as well. Chukov presented Wheeler with a personally inscribed copy of his book, "The Battle of Stalingrad." In return, Wheeler presented the Russian with a medallion and then arranged for him to tour the National War College later in the day.

Probing the Press
A Press Ethics Committee formed to probe slanted reporting and editing and boasting a prestigious board of conservative sponsors is actually a by-product of the notorious Liberty Lobby.

The guiding force behind the Press Ethics Committee is rightist Frank L. Kluckhohn, a right-wing activist and former newspaperman now soliciting funds nationwide for the press investigation. What conservatives receiving Kluckhohn's solicitation letters probably don't realize is that he spends much of his time at Liberty Lobby headquarters putting out a far-right newsletter called the Washington Observer which has strong anti-Semitic overtones.

Kluckhohn also was narrator for "The Otepka Case," a 1967 film produced by the Liberty Lobby, and was involved in the 1968 fund-raising effort of the United Congressional Appeals, a Liberty Lobby front. The Liberty Lobby's own anti-Semitic credentials are impeccable. Willis A. Carto, an admirer of Hitler and publisher of anti-Semitic literature, is still closely connected with the Liberty Lobby and occasionally writes for the Washington Observer.

Given this background, some eyebrows were raised when Kluckhohn released to the press a prestigious list of conservatives — including Gov. Louie B. Nunn of Kentucky — who had joined Kluckhohn's committee.

Actually, that list seems to be just window-dressing for Kluckhohn's fund solicitations. An aide to Nunn told us the governor had not joined Kluckhohn's committee, had not given permission for his name to be used, and had no intention of taking part in the investigation.

Columnist John Chamberlain, a highly respected conservative, told us he had given Kluckhohn permission to use his name but was having second thoughts and planned to pull out of the operation.

Farmer's Folly
Civil rights leader James Farmer, just sworn in as an Assistant Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, has told his superiors he never approved or signed a March 24 advertisement in the New York Times suggesting that President Nixon was "absolutely mad" in advocating an anti-ballistic missile system.

Farmer's name appeared on the advertisement automatically as a board member of SANE, the pacifist organization which placed the ad. However, Farmer's new chiefs advised him gently he would be well advised to resign from the boards of all such leftist action groups.

Farmer's name on the SANE advertisement angered conservative Republicans in Congress, always a bit apprehensive about the appointment of the one prominent Negro in the Nixon administration. Rep. John Ashbrook of Ohio, chairman of the American Conservative Union, placed a personal telephone call to HEW Secretary Robert Finch to protest.

Unruh on the Move
State Rep. Jesse Unruh is trying to get the bandwagon rolling early in his bid to get the Democratic nomination against Gov. Ronald Reagan of California next year.

Unruh is telling Democratic politicians that the train is leaving the station and they had better climb aboard. He suggests to them that his principal foe for the nomination, Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco, is out of the running and may well end up on Unruh's ticket as attorney general.

In these private conversations, Unruh also talks about state Senator George Moscone of San Francisco, a rising young comer and no friend of Alioto's, for lieutenant governor — splitting the Italian community in San Francisco.

More surprisingly, Unruh is hinting that Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown, Jr., son of the former anti-Unruh governor, might make an outstanding candidate for secretary of state. Brown, 31, ran first among 133 candidates for the Los Angeles Junior College board on April 1.

Finance Panel Cuts, Defends Its Actions

MADISON (AP) — Budget requests for vocational schools and the Department of Natural Resources underwent cutbacks Tuesday at the hands of the legislature's economy-minded Joint Finance Committee.

At the same time, the Republican-dominated committee defended itself against what members called criticism from "educators, social reformers and the liberal press."

The panel cut $3 million from the $10.6 million increase requested by Gov. Warren Knowles for the state's vocational, technical and adult education system for 1969-71.

A total of $673,000 was lopped off the $10 million increase sought by Knowles for the Natural Resources Department. The University of Wisconsin, which had about $40 million trimmed from its proposed budget last week, submitted a list of "priority" programs for reconsideration by the committee. The Board of Regents voted Friday to push for restoration of at least $10 million.

Cuts in the proposed budget of the vocational system Tuesday were approved 9-3.

In a statement, the Republican members of the finance committee, which has cut about $200 million from Knowles' budget recommendations, was not "out to get anyone."

They said a $416 million "revenue gap" between anticipated income and the $500 million increase in agency requests forced them to recommend the reductions.

"This committee has vowed to respond to the wishes of the Wisconsin taxpayer who can no longer afford the bureaucratic policies of big spending," the statement said. "It is our intention to bring spending in line with the anticipated revenue."

The legislators said no agency has had its budget reduced below the levels of the current budget, which expires June 30.

Sen. Henry Dorman, D-Racine, criticized a reduction of $2.3 million from the $7.8 million requested for state aids to the vocational districts.

Higher Taxes

Dorman said the move would force the system to increase its assessment on local taxpayers or lower the caliber of education.

"What you are providing is only a 4 1/2 per cent increase for the next biennium, when the cost of living will have gone up 10 per cent," Dorman argued.

On a suggestion by Assemblyman Kenneth Merkel, R-Brookfield, the committee adopted a set of guidelines by which administrative costs in the system could not exceed 11 per cent of instructional costs.

Meanwhile, University of Wisconsin president Fred H. Harrington received faulty backing Tuesday on the eve of a formal protest to legislators over proposed cuts in college budgets.

Harrington, who already had the blessings of regents for his appearance this afternoon before the budget-reviewing Joint Finance Committee, was given further support from a statement by the faculty.

The statement, addressed to the public, urged voters to contact legislators in support of the university's budget requests.

Serious Jeopardy

"We must warn you," the statement said, "that the quality and the usefulness of this great institution is in serious jeopardy because of the budget cuts."

The statement cited the school's new Green Bay and Parkside divisions as units which it said would be harmed by a funds shortage.

Harrington said the budget requested by UW contained $150 million in increased spending over the current biennium.

The increase, he said, was trimmed to $98 million by the Coordinating Council on Higher Education, then to $79 million by Gov. Warren P. Knowles, and now to $39 million by the Joint Finance Committee.

The budget as presented by the committee will be subject to approval by the full legislature, which can restore funds

New Bill on Student Aid Is Drawn Up Could Withhold Finances if Rules Of Regents Violated

MADISON (AP) — A bill containing replies to protests from Gov. Warren P. Knowles was introduced in the State Senate Tuesday, calling for elimination of state financial assistance to campus protesters.

Knowles had vetoed a similar measure, saying it contained technical discrepancies and that it cited violations for which no statute exists.

No effort was made to override Knowles' veto. Instead, an altered version was drawn up, and was introduced as a new bill.

The newer measure says the financial restriction can be imposed against students convicted of breaking state or municipal laws, or of violating rules laid down by regents. The bill said financial aid could be withheld only after the affected student is allowed a hearing.

In other action: Senators approved an Assembly-adopted measure requiring the State Building Commission to report to the legislature on any construction project costing $50,000 or more. The vote was 18-11.

They voted to revoke a requirement for judicial approval of municipal annexation of an area greater than a square mile. The requirement was recently ruled unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court.

The Senate received a bill to appropriate $1 million for publicizing Wisconsin during the 1969-71 biennium.

Another new bill calls for a documentary tax of five cents per $100 value of property involved in real estate transfers.

Action Delayed In Theft Case

One of two Appleton youths charged with taking money from a vending machine at a Kaukauna service station March 27, appeared in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 Tuesday afternoon.

Judge Nick F. Schaefer continued until April 22 a theft charge against Allen J. Southard, 18, 1124 W. Brewster St. Southard was freed on a $50 signature bond.

Kaukauna police allege that Southard and Jack Downie, 19, 1218 S. Memorial Drive, stole change from a machine at a Consolidated Station in Kaukauna.

Downie appeared last week and his case was continued to May 13 to give him time to consult an attorney. He also is free on a $50 signature bond.

'Menace to Community' Supervisors Launch War on Pornography

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

A moral stand against distribution of pornography and a pledge to drive it from Outagamie County was taken this morning by the county board.

The supervisors called for a renewed campaign "to destroy and remove all forms of pornography, which, the resolution's author, Supv. John Schreiter, Appleton, said is "a growing menace, a menace already embedded deeply in our community."

The vote was 44-1.

There was no discussion, and the only dissenter, Supv. Charles Wussow, Appleton, did not indicate why he opposed the stand.

Movies Come Later

Supv. Harold Miller, Appleton, suggested that movie theaters should be included, but Schreiter said this could come later.

Schreiter's resolution also asked the district attorney to "give the highest priority to prosecutions" of pornography cases, and asked that the Wisconsin County Boards Association and the Town Boards Association of Wisconsin be sent a copy of the resolution.

Schreiter placed the need for protection of the morals and decency over the "constant contention of freedom of speech and freedom of the press."

'Filthy' Materials

He termed the materials being sold in the county "worthless and filthy," and said they serve no good cause.

Schreiter indicated that he had studied the problem, with the help of the Appleton Breakfast Optimist Club directors, who are very concerned about pornography.

Schreiter's emotional plea drew applause.

He blamed many things for the spread of pornography, including a too-liberal U.S. Supreme Court. "Those ultra liberal justices found in our United States Supreme Court," he said, "content that this pornography is freedom of speech."

He also pointed a finger at "ultra liberals, whether they be theologian, educator, author or other individuals."

'Silent Majority'

The average citizen did not escape blame. Part of the fault is with the "silent majority," he said, "who make a mockery of their so-called concern by failing to speak up."

Schreiter said the "good people of this world" have a right to expect decency in their community.

"The citizen has had no weapons to combat this menace; they lacked leadership on this issue. But now, we can furnish it to them, providing we have the stomach for it," he said.

He contended that government — county, state and national can become involved, and should, since other means have been ineffective in battling pornography.

He called on the supervisors to demonstrate that Outagamie County does "not accept nor condone the experimentation of

County Board Elects Three to Executive Unit

Supervisors Retain Seven on Committee At Reorganization

Three new members were elected Tuesday to the Outagamie County Board 11-man executive committee. Seven men were retained on the county's most powerful committee, and one more will be named.

New members elected at the board's Tuesday afternoon reorganization session were Edward Spierings, Little Chute, of the airport committee; Mrs. Barbara A. Steger, Appleton, of health, education and institutions committee, and John Schreiter, Appleton, of courts, justice and enforcement committee.

Each standing committee is represented by one member on the executive committee, along with County Board Chairman, Sylvester Esler, who presides, and Vice Chairman Marvin Babbitt, Seymour. Babbitt also is a member of the new standing finance committee.

Re-Elected Members

Re-elected to the executive committee were Supvs., Norman Helms, Seymour, agriculture and conservation committee; G. Allen Bubolz, Appleton, parks and recreation; Patrick Mares, Appleton, public property and insurance; Norman Austin, Town of Oneida; board of social services ad Joseph DeBruin, Buchanan, zoning.

The board also re-elected the highway committee Tuesday afternoon, but no member has been designated to sit on the executive committee.

Highway committee members are Supvs. Ervin Conradt, Shiocott; Patrick Heenan, Appleton; Irving Grunwaldt, Black Creek;

Court to Define What Is Obscene

An Appleton businessman testified this morning that he purchased three magazines he considered "obscene" from The Book Seller, 609 W. College Ave., on March 21.

Robert Schreiter, 211 S. Walnut St., was the only witness called by the district attorney's office during a brief preliminary hearing in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 for Eugene Court, 43, 508 S. Walnut St., who is charged with having obscene or indecent pictures for sale.

Court, operator of the downtown book store, was charged in a complaint signed by Schreiter.

Judge Nick F. Schaefer, after hearing testimony today, adjourned the case to Friday afternoon to allow time for him to review the three magazines submitted into evidence, and to give consideration to a motion for dismissal, made by Court's attorney.

Court is free on a $1,000 signature bond.

Schreiter told the court he went to The Book Seller the evening of March 21 to investigate a report he had heard about material in the store.

He said he became interested after a service club which he belongs reviewed several questionable magazines.

What's Available

Schreiter said he is concerned about what is available to young people.

He identified three magazines for which he said he paid $2 each at The Book Seller. He said they were among magazines in three stacks in a corner of the store. The magazines were stapled shut, he said.

Schreiter, at the request of Dist. Atty. James Long, read aloud the names and other wording on the magazines covers. Each cover read, "For adults only," according to Schreiter.

The three magazines contained mostly black and white began to read from "one small chapter" of a paperback, but was cut short after reading one sentence. Supervisors indicated they knew what he was driving at.

He also said he had color pictures of a naked boy and girl that they could view.

Schreiter said that 10 members of the county board had signed his resolution.

Institute of Paper Chemistry 'A Tree Grows in a Test Tube'

BY DON CASTONIA

A "test tube tree" has been produced and grown by Institute of Paper Chemistry scientists, the first time a complete tree has been produced by the tissue culture process.

While Institute scientists discovered in Sweden in the 1930s, and in this country in 1954, the triplod aspen will grow to pulp size about 25 per cent faster than other aspens. It could be harvested after about 10 to 12 years, or at the grower's prerogative, harvesting could be delayed.

Three of five such trees were created during the past year and are still surviving with two of the three approaching three feet in height. The third is the newest tree and is about to be transplanted into soil.

6 Years' Work

The breakthrough in tissue culture development is the result of six years of work by Dr. Lawson Winton, a member of the Institute's Genetics and Physiology group, which is headed by Dr. Dean W. Einspahr.

The project at the Institute involves a form of Quaking Aspen tree called a "triplod" Aspen, appears only rarely in nature. However, Dr. Winton and Dr. Einspahr say the tissue culture process is adaptable to any species of tree.

The triplod Aspen differs from the regular Quaking Aspen in that it has three sets of chromosomes per cell instead of two.

The Aspen was chosen because of its rapid growth characteristics and its ability to produce new shoots after it has been harvested

Aspens, which have short fibers, are used primarily by the pulp industry in coarser grades of paper and in corrugated materials. The triplod Aspen has longer fibers and produces a better pulp. This form of the Aspen was first discovered in Sweden in the 1930s, and in this country in 1954.

The triplod aspen will grow to pulp size about 25 per cent faster than other aspens. It could be harvested after about 10 to 12 years, or at the grower's prerogative, harvesting could be delayed.

produce a new tree, a stem segment is placed in a solution containing growth hormones which stimulate the growth of a layer of cells which exist under the stem's bark.

These cells, containing only characteristics of the tree from which the stem was taken keep multiplying, like cancer, and form a mass on the end of the stem similar in appearance to a cauliflower head. This "callus" is removed from the stem and is then placed in another nutrient solution which tells the callus to start growing shoots and roots.

Dr. Winton said previous experiments have been able to produce both shoots and roots, but the two have never been connected. Now in an average of one per cent of the cultures, the shoot and root are connected.

The shoot and root are then returned to a balanced growth nutrient for development until they can be transplanted to soil.

In nature, a tree must grow to flowering size before it can pollinate or be cross bred, a period usually of at least 10 years. Research now is aiming at causing the callus to flower to permit cross breeding after about a year.

Genetically Identical

Trees produced by the tissue culture process have a genetic makeup identical to that of the tree from which the stem section was taken. Since the callus which grew at the end of the stem can be subdivided and forced to continue reproducing itself indefinitely, an infinite number of trees could be produced, each one genetically identical.

Dr. Einspahr said the process, through further research, may result in producing new trees from single cells.

Once this level is attained, it would then apparently be possible to determine the effects of various nutrients on the cell and ter trees for almost any purpose out which nutrient produces a higher cellulose content advantage to the pulp and paper industry which uses the cellulose in paper production.

While research has been directed toward pulp producing theory of the process could be directed toward producing various nutrients on the cell and ter trees for almost any purpose out which nutrient pro-

Lower Tax Rate Possible, Buckley Tells City Council

Assessed Valuation Increasing

Mayor George Buckley told the city council Tuesday night it is not beyond the realm of possibility that Appleton's tax rate will be lower in 1970.

However, Buckley conditioned his forecast on the premise that all city departments, boards and commissions hold down next year's budget requests.

Buckley estimated an 8 per cent increase in the city's assessed valuation (Tax base) and said additional revenues from this should set the guidelines for proposed 1970 expenditures.

"Thus, the city would be living within its income instead of having to go to the taxpayers for more money in order to operate," Buckley said.

Buckley's first executive budget this year, which cut deep into all departmental requests, resulted in a $68.28 tax rate.

After subtracting the state credit refund to each taxpayer, the net rate for the major part of Appleton was $64.12.

The mayor told aldermen that although annual state-of-the-city messages are the custom, he was not going to go into detail on government operations over the past year.

"I believe you are well aware of all the progress that has taken place in Appleton," Buckley asserted.

Faith in System

Buckley said he has faith in the executive budget system, although it may have gotten off to a shaky start.

The mayor said he and Finance Director David Champion are both aware that there were faults and delays in the budget as presented last fall.

"However, I ask the council to remember this was our first experience with the executive budget and I believe we have now arrived at methods and systems that will do away with these past delays," Buckley said.

Budget Hearings

Buckley said he and Champion in preparing the 1970 executive budget, will schedule individual hearings with all department heads on their budget requests shortly after Sept. 1.

Under such a procedure, the finance committee would then receive recommendations "in plenty of time to avoid the rush-rush conditions under which we operated in 1968," Buckley said.

Emphasis was then shifted onto next year's budgeting by Buckley, who declared, "What I am about to mention will probably be a startling concept to consider, but I don't believe it can be brought to fruition by our working together."

"I would like to see a drop in the tax rate for the City of Appleton," he said bluntly.

"At first glance this may seem completely ridiculous, but I can visualize no competent reason why it cannot be accomplished," he continued.

Buckley then pointed out that Community Goals 15-Member Citizens Advisory Committee Appointed by Buckley

Appleton has a new 15-member Citizens Advisory Committee to work with the city administration and carry out community goals, including urban renewal among many things.

Mayor George Buckley made the appointments Tuesday night and they were confirmed by the city council.

In the past, the city had a 75-member committee which was recently disbanded in favor of a complete reorganization.

Buckley said he selected committee members from two lists — his own and another furnished by City Planner Jack Hetu and John McKenzie president of the former citizens' group.

Members Listed

Citizen Advisory Committee appointees and their affiliations are Lawrence W. Goetz, 530 W. Glendale Ave., Wisconsin-Michigan Power Co.; Ralph C. Gertsch, 1833 N. Student Council Members

In addition, student council presidents from the city's four senior high schools will serve on the committee on a rotating basis.

The Citizens' Advisory committee will work with the city department of planning and development.

Beyer Wins Race for Presidency

Ald. Norman E. Beyer (20th) swept to a first ballot victory in the race for the Appleton city council presidency Tuesday night.

Beyer, 1722 W. Spring St., has been an alderman for six years and also served one term on the Outagamie County Board.

The 47-year-old insurance agent and real estate broker, who also retains his chairmanship of the street-sanitation committee, defeated Ald. Orville Strutz (17th).

11 Votes

Beyer received the necessary 11 votes (majority) on the first official ballot; Strutz got 8.

"I wish to thank you for the vote of confidence and will do my best," Beyer said in a brief acceptance speech.

He succeeds Ald. Alvin E. Tews (5th) who served two terms as council president — in 1958 and again in 1968.

Mayor George Buckley had high praise for Tews for the job he did as council president and in heading the finance committee over the last legislative year.

"On behalf of myself and the citizens of Appleton, I wish to thank Ald. Tews for truly an outstanding job," Buckley declared. "He never turned down an assignment and was always right there to do the job."

3 Appleton Locals Begin Defense at Unfair Practice Trial

Three Appleton labor unions — respondents in a National Labor Relations Board trial — led off their defense here today with a claim that several ready mix firms were allied and had a common labor policy.

Teamsters Local 563, Operating Engineers Local 139 and Plumbers and Steamfitters Local 458 are being prosecuted by the federal government on the complaint of unfair labor practices filed sometime ago by Oshkosh Ready Mix.

Inland Trucking Co., whose officers are second generation members of the Courtney and Plummer families in the Fox Cities area, and Wesley Mielahn, Oshkosh, are co-partners in Oshkosh Ready Mix.

Over Objections

Over objections of government attorneys and counsel for Oshkosh Ready Mix, attorney Gerry Miller, Milwaukee, representing the unions,

Six Years of Efforts in the Institute of Paper Chemistry's Genetics and Physiology group has paid off in the production and growth of a tree from the tissue culture process. Three of five such trees "created" during the past year are still surviving with this tree and two others now approaching three feet in height. The "test tube tree" is the project of Dr. Lawson Winton of the genetics and physiology group. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Dr. Winton

Glad You Asked That!

The Post-Crescent B 4
Wednesday, April 16, 1969

BY HY GARDNER

Q: Is it true that Maria Callas was once a loser on Major Bowes' Original Radio Amateur Hour? — Armistead Saxton, Columbus, Ind.

A: No. She was a winner -- at the age of 12.

Q: What's Mickey Mantle going to do now that he's given up playing baseball? — A.T.Z. Conshohocken, Pa.

A: He'll launch a restaurant franchise called "Mickey Mantle's Country Cooking," start a chain of "Mickey Mantle's Men's Shops" and devote a good deal of time to boys' clubs. The Mick says, rather sheepishly, that he doesn't miss playing, yet he still considers Yankee Stadium his home away from home.

Q: Isn't Jackie Onassis' ambition to have her husband become president of Greece or assume some diplomatic post? Has he had any previous experience in anything but making money?

A: Early in his career, Aristotle was Greek Consul to Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Q: Whatever happened to all that talk about making all holidays fall on Mondays? — Susan Hotchkiss, Lemont, Ill.

A: It starts in 1971. But you'll have to settle for Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day, Veteran's Day, Columbus Day and Labor Day (nationally) plus maybe some local holidays. We can thank former President Johnson (remember him?) for signing this sensible three-day weekend document into law.

Q: Is Senator Everett Dirksen the first political recording artist? — B.R.B., Quincy, Mass.

A: No. President Warren G. Harding used to make speeches and mail them out in the form of phonograph records.

Q: What is the real story behind the marriage bustup of actress Lauren Bacall and actor Jason Robards? — Angus Wertheim, Henderson, Ky.

A: Friends claim that Robards, a sensitive man, wearied of all the idolatry and mystique centered upon Lauren's late husband, Humphrey Bogart. She tried to discourage the worshipping cult but to no avail. It wasn't helped by some TV stations programming Humphrey Bogart Weeks.

Q: When I saw Carol Channing with Pearl Bailey in their charming ABC-TV Special it seemed to me that the "Hello, Dolly!" star appeared to be taller than she used to be. Were my eyes deceiving me? — A.T.V., La Jolla, Calif.

A: Rather than deceiving you I think they are unusually perceptive. I asked Carol about the phenomena and she explained, "Oh gracious darling, now they can notice it on television! How wonderful! When I noticed that my son, Chan, only 15, was beginning to tower over me (he's now a six-footer) I decided I had to do something about it, other than get higher heels. I was told that if I had an iron bar installed in our bathroom and I hung on it for half hour every morning, it would increase my height. I've been doing this now for maybe five months and my height actually has increased from 5 foot 8 1/4 to 5 foot 9. The trick is not to chin the bar, just to dangle from it!" (Copyright, 1969)

Cliff Robertson is tossed into the air Tuesday after learning he'd won the Oscar as best actor of 1968. Doing the tossing are Japanese members of the crew of "Too Late the Hero," which is being shot in the Philippine jungle south of Manila with Robertson as one of the stars. Word of Robertson's honor reached them by short-wave radio. He won the golden statuette for his portrayal of the mentally retarded man whom doctors turn temporarily into a genius in the movie "Charly." (AP Wirephoto)

Al Martino, Robert Goulet Join Glen

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-7:30 — Channel 2 — Glen Campbell, Al Martino and Robert Goulet are all singers of dissimilar style who nevertheless manage to complement each other on The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour. Another singing feature of the show is Nancy Sinatra. Comedy is taken care of by Tim Conway, who appears in one skit as a bull fighter, fighting a hangover.

6:30-7:30 — Channel 11 — The last episode of the first run season for Here Come the Brides is an old plot with a new twist. It's the one about a family of rugged brothers who swear vengeance when one of them is killed.

6:30-8 — Channel 5 — Buffy Ste. Marie, the Indian folk singer, made her acting debut on The Virginian last year and the event is rerun tonight. She plays a Shoshone maiden who has been reared in Eastern schools. When the time comes for her return to her reservation, she's torn by the difference between the culture she was born to and her recent education.

7:30-8 — Channel 2 — Joyce Van Patten, as Bert's wife, is quite an eye-fall on The Good Guys. Rufus is the cause for her conversion when he convinces the couple that Claudia should load herself with sex appeal to attract truck drivers to the diner.

8-9 — Channel 5 — Johnny Cash, who has his own series coming up, gives us a sort of preview on The Kraft Music Hall. The show is chock full of talent, though it must be said the country-western singer provides us with a wide variety of talent outside that category.

9-10 — Channel 2 — Some Hawaiians will applaud the story point in Hawaii Five-O, others won't like it. John Kneubuhl's script illustrates, and so does a graphic camera, the destruction of property by profiteers who are turning the island's natural beauty into a concrete jungle.

9-10 — Channel 5 — The season's finale on The Outsider is one of the better of this generally good, but canceled, series. It has Ross in the familiar situation of following a newly released ex-convict who has knowledge of a cache of stolen money totalling over $250,000.

TV MOVIES

3:30 — Channel 5 — Johnny Apollo (1940) Tyrone Power, Dorothy Lamour. College son of convicted embezzler father gets into a life of crime due to bitterness of father's conviction; love proves to help him.

7:30 — Channel 34 — Jolson Sings Again (1950) Larry Parks, Barbara Hale. Story about the 'Minstrel of Broadway.'

8:00 — Channel 9 — Do Not Disturb (1964) Doris Day, Rod Taylor. Romantic-comedy about an American businessman transferred to England and his well-meaning but meddlesome wife. (C)

8:00 — Channel 11 — Going My Way (1944) Bing Crosby, Barry Fitzgerald. Young priest is assigned curate of deteriorating church in New York and gets off on the wrong foot with the parishioners and priest. An opera star and the boy's choir help him back on his feet.

10:30 — Channel 7 — Cock-shell Heroes (1956) Jose Ferrer, Trevor Howard. This British-made World War II yarn deals with some English Marines on a canoe invasion of a French port.

11:30 — Channel 2 — Blueprint for a Million (1966) Gunnar Heistrom, Tor Isedal. A supposedly foolproof plan for a million-dollar robbery explodes in a hail of bullets. (C)

Buckley Revamps Park Commission

Reorganization Ends Dispute; Aldermen Given Appointments

Mayor George Buckley revamped the park-recreation commission Tuesday night, along with reshuffling the makeup of city council committees.

The mayor's action was confirmed by the city council during its annual reorganization meeting at city hall.

In shaking up the commission, Buckley apparently ended the feud which had existed between himself and some park-recreation commissioners who had refused to recognize him as an ex-officio voting member.

Dropped from the commission by virtue of not being reappointed were Wendall H. Smith, vice chairman; Charles Buchanan, board of education president; and Ald. Orville Strutz (17th), a council representative who had served for three years.

Strutz Objects

Strutz objected to being dropped, declaring, "I am very disappointed and disturbed." He had requested to be reappointed.

Ald. Orval Polzin (4th) and John Steidl (18th) were appointed to one-year terms on the commission, replacing Strutz and Ralph Gertsch, the latter defeated in his bid for re-election to the council.

The mayor picked Gertsch for another term as a citizen, rather than aldermanic representative, succeeding Smith.

And, Buckley announced his selection of Karl Becker, a newly-elected member of the board of education, to replace Buchanan as the school board representative on the commission.

Becker's appointment will become effective July 1, while the others went into effect when confirmed by the city council.

Holdover members on the commission include Ald. Eldred Mullen (6th), Arthur Jones and

Huber Law Escapee Sentenced

Term Extended by 4 Months After Flight From Custody

Robert L. Hill, 36, Detroit, Mich., a Huber Law prisoner who failed to return to the Outagamie County Jail from his job on March 23, this morning was sentenced to an additional four months in jail.

Hill pleaded guilty to a charge of escaping from custody. The violation carries a maximum sentence of six months.

Hill, on Dec. 3, was sentenced to two one-year terms in the county jail for 10 counts of issuing worthless checks in the Appleton area.

Free For 8 Days

He was granted Huber Law (work release) privileges. Hill left the jail for work the night of March 22, and did not return. He turned himself in to Sheboygan police March 30.

While in Sheboygan, Hill is sued three worthless $12 checks, for which he received a six-months sentence, which is to run concurrently with the Outagamie sentence.

Hill told the court he started drinking the night he left the jail for work and when he sobered up a week later, he turned himself in "to face the consequences."

Judge Nick F. Schaefer, in reply to a question by Hill, said he could not consider granting Huber Law privileges again now, although he indicated he might review the matter at a later date.

Chamber to Pick New Directors

Five new directors will be elected to three-year terms Thursday night at the annual dinner meeting of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce at the Conway Motor Inn.

Chamber Manager Donald Stone reminded that the featured speaker will be Dr. Thomas Hagai, a Baptist minister, High Point, N.C.

In addition to the directors' election, committee-chairman appointments will be made. Stone noted, Reports by Patrick Coughlin president, and Gus Zuehlke, treasurer, also are scheduled.

A cocktail hour is planned at 6 p.m. and dinner at 7 p.m.

Welder Ignites Deck On Railway Flat Car

KAUKAUNA — Firemen were called at 6:45 a.m. Tuesday to the A. Goldin and Sons junk yard, 205 Maple St., when workmen using a welding torch ignited wooden decking on a Chicago and North Western Railway flatcar. Only minor damage resulted.

Firemen extinguished grass fires near Augustine Street about 6:45 p.m. and Plank Road at 10:38 p.m. Monday.

Technical Questions

Some technical questions had been raised on the length of Strutz's term, which some believed would be until 1970. However, it was recalled that Strutz was appointed to the commission for his term of office after Ald. Al Stoegebauer (4th) resigned a year ago when elected to the plan commission. Buckley said he conferred with the city attorney and got a clarification before he made the appointments.

"I think the reorganized commission will be in a much better position to work with the city council and carry out its goals with the support of the administration," Buckley commented later.

He also felt the commission would now abide by legal opinions issued by City Atty. David Geenen, which upheld the mayor's rights to serve as a voting member.

The appointment of Becker was described by Buckley as "getting a new school board face on the commission."

New Chairmen

When it came to city council committee appointments, two chairmanships changed hands.

Ald. Walter Kalata (2nd) was moved up to head the welfare-ordinance committee to succeed Richard Huisman, defeated recently in his bid for re-election as 1st Ward alderman.

And Ald. John Steidl (18th) got the chairmanship of the commerce-industrial development committee, formerly headed by Gertsch. Steidl also is chairman of the council's school advisory committee.

Reappointed chairmen of other standing committees were Ald. Alvin E. Tews (5th), finance; John F. Ayers (12th), public safety; and Norman E. Beyer (20th) street-sanitation.

Kalata, Tews, Ayers and Beyer — by virtue of heading committees — also serve on the board of public works.

Because five new aldermen were seated Tuesday night, the roster of several committees changed over the past year. Committee assignments are:

Assignments Listed

Welfare-ordinance — Kalata, Ald. Arthur Hoolihan (11th), Richard Schouten Jr. (19th), Ald. Polzin (4th) and Ald. Glenn W. Thompson (13th).

Council Splits on Electing President

Klarer Gives Way to Vondracek Following 4 Deadlocked Ballots

KAUKAUNA — Reorganization of the council Tuesday night ran into difficulty when aldermen had difficulty in agreeing who should serve as president.

Three men were nominated. Alds. James McDaniel (3rd), Jerry Klarer (4th), and Robert Vondracek (1st) McDaniel (thanked aldermen for nominating him, but said he didn't wish to serve a second term.

Three secret ballots resulted in five vote deadlocks for the remaining two candidates. City Atty. Donald Green suggested the matter could be settled by other than voting if the two candidates agreed. One alderman jokingly suggested a duel while a second felt a flip of the coin could settle the issue.

Fourth Ballot

A fourth ballot was decided on, but it again resulted in a deadlock at Klarer then asked to have his name withdrawn and asked for unanimous support of his opponent, Vondracek, thanked Klarer for his action, but said he felt a coin could have been flipped. Aldermen then passed unanimous approval for Vondracek.

Lone action by the new council was on a motion by Ald. William Rogers (1st), who requested the legislative committee draw up necessary resolutions to reduce the size of the city council, effective in 1971. He felt one alderman should be

Windfall of $7,000 Goes To Schools

Extra Federal Money To Be Used to Buy Teaching Supplies

The Appleton school district has received a windfall of $7,193 in federal funds which the board of education agreed Monday night should be used for equipment at Washington Elementary School.

Supt. of Schools William Spears said the money is from the National Defense Education Act and administered by the State Department of Public Instruction.

Spears said that Appleton oversubscribed for the state's allotment, and when there was money encumbered for programs not completed in other school systems, oversubscribers, as Appleton, received additional grants.

Appleton received its initial share two years ago.

Spears said this money could not be used to reduce the operating budget, and the board of education agreed to use it to help equip Washington, which will be reopened next fall. Instructional supplies will be purchased, it was agreed.

Spears told the board the administration knew that encumbered money might be available.

Byrnes said a similar competition will be conducted for appointments next year and he urged any interested young men who will be between the ages of 17 and 22 next July 1 to write in for information on applying.

For Physical Education

Board Will Negotiate For Purchase of Land To Expand High School

KAUKAUNA — The question of whether the board of education should be permitted to negotiate for a small parcel of land and residence on Island Street caused considerable debate at the common council session Tuesday night.

The board had requested that the city negotiate for the sale of the property or that it get permission to negotiate themselves. The dwelling is now condemned and it could be an advantageous time to secure the property before improvements are made.

Several years ago the board informed the council of hopes to secure an entire block on Island Street behind the high school to permit use of the area for physical education purposes. Plans called for property to be purchased as it is available rather than attempting a wholesale purchase.

Higher Charges

Ald. James McDaniel (3rd) objected, indicating once the piece of property was secured, the board would be almost bound to purchase the remaining area and this could result in higher charges by other property owners in the area. He questioned how the board of education could be given money to buy the land when it was not in the budget.

Ald. Lloyd Kloehn (2nd) felt the matter should be referred to the fiscal control board since it involved expenditures of money.

Ald. Jerry Klarer (4th) indicated the board was merely seeking the right to negotiate for the purchase and would have to request funds from the fiscal board once a price was agreed upon.

Ald. George Simon (3rd), who favored negotiation for sale by the school board, questioned whether the school board had money or whether $35,000 in the budget, which had been appropriated for interest on a bond issue which was never floated, could be used.

Ald. Russel Dix (4th), said the $35,000 was deleted from the budget and he felt securing this property would raise the cost of others in the area. He asked why the area should be purchased if no plans were made to enlarge the high school.

Future Needs

Thomas Nytes, school district business manager, pointed out the high school had lost one-half its physical education area with the construction of a road through the property recently and the acquisition of the Island Street area could meet future physical education area demands.

Fire Chief William Haupt pointed out the dwelling under consideration was a fire hazard and feared for the safety of families who might inhabit the home in the future.

Ald. William Rogers (5th) amended the motion to permit the school board to negotiate the purchase of the property and report price findings back to the fiscal control board.

His motion passed with Dix, Kloehn, McDaniel and Ald. Robert Vondracek (1st), still objecting.

A low bid of Washington National Insurance Co. for an annual premium of $27,875 was accepted, granting increased insurance coverage for city employees effective April 15. Aldermen voted to appropriate $500 for a school patrol outing in May and renewed insurance on the sewage disposal plant to permit coverage of $650,000 on the plant and $10,000 on contents.

Move Defeated

McDaniel objected to the purchase of a used air compressor at a cost of $3,880. He said the city would be further ahead buying a new unit. His effort to have the purchase referred back to the board of public works was defeated, despite support by Alds. Clayton Blumreich (1st) and Dix, and Richard Gerrits. (2nd).

City Engineer Robert Natrop pointed out the city would be obliged to rent a unit if one were not purchased, but it was up to the council to decide whether a $1,900 savings in

Two Divorces, One Annulment Granted

Two divorces and one annulment were granted in Outagamie County Court Branch 1. Marlene Barton, 30, 3906 E. Wisconsin Ave., was granted an annulment from Clifford Barton, 37, Milwaukee, on grounds their Sept. 7, 1968, marriage was void. They had no children.

Herbert J. Schmoll, 23, 2430 E. Newberry St., was divorced from Peggy Schmoll, 28, California, on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. They were married Sept. 28, 1968, and had no children.

Virginia Gustman, 21, 607 N. Division St., was divorced from Marvin C. Gustmann, 20, De Pere, whom she married June 24, 1967. They had no children.

purchase cost was advantageous to the taxpayers or whether, in the long run, a new unit would be more economical. The used compressor carries a new unit guarantee and if the city does not approve of the unit, it can be returned.

Members voted to advertise for bids on a chlorine storage building and metering pit for the sewage plant, bids to be in by 6:30 p.m. May 5. Natrop was instructed to prepare cost estimates for extension of sewer and waters to areas considered for annexation. Approval was given to the hiring of Joseph Ribarchek, Jack Luedtke and William Koester for the street department.

An annexation ordinance designating on-half acre of land recently annexed from the Town of Buchanan as Class B residential was approved. The area is located on County Trunk Z near the southeast limits of the city.

Mayor Makes Economy Plea

Anderson Gives His Message to Kaukauna Council

KAUKAUNA — "Since some factors such as cost of living and cost of goods we buy are beyond our control, it is imperative that we attempt to find other means of economy in our government," Mayor Gilbert Anderson said in addressing the new council Tuesday night.

"We must search for ways and means in each department effecting more economy wherever this is possible. More and better use of our own crews, wherever work load permits, in doing projects normally hired out is perhaps one way of saving money," he continued.

He felt the problems of government, on all levels, would not diminish, but would become more complex. The demands for increased services, the increasing cost of services and the increasing population all make the tasks for years ahead more difficult, Anderson said.

He said the paramount project in the city was the separation of storm and sanitary sewer systems, indicating infiltration added tremendously to the cost of sewage plant operation. Future annexations would further complicate the problem, he continued, and suggested financing the project on a 10-year basis.

"The problem of our waste disposal is growing increasingly larger and we are hopeful that the study now being made will show some concrete recommendations as to the path we can follow," Anderson said.

"Systematic planning as being done now under the 701 program will, when completed, show us the direction we should follow in the years to come in the development of our downtown business area, zoning, capital expenditures and neighborhood analysis," he continued.

He felt upgrading of fire and police departments should be continued through in-department training and joining with other cities in training. Other problems mentioned included education, roads and road repair.

"The dilemma that all of us are faced with is the fact that we cannot allow ourselves as a city to deteriorate, we must keep pace with progress and yet we must be reasonable in our approach to it financially," Anderson concluded.

Youths Will be Sentenced on Reduced Charges

Sentencing is scheduled for April 29 for two 18-year-old Milwaukee youths who pleaded guilty Tuesday to reduced theft charges.

Chris D. Nelson and James W. Wingers had been charged with taking a car owned by David Gruber, Medina, without consent, on Feb. 26. They appeared in court late in March and their cases were continued to Tuesday to allow their attorney and the state to check further into the matter.

Sheriff's investigators alleged the youths took a 1963 auto owned by Gruber from his home. The car was recovered in Hibbing, Minn. Wingers and Nelson have been free on bonds.

Dist. Atty. James Long asked for the reduced theft charge — contending theft of under $100 — saying it was a more appropriate charge.

Judge Nick F. Schaefer continued the case to allow time for a pre-sentence investigation. Wingers and Nelson again will be freed under bonds following the initial phases of the pre-sentence investigation.

State Bill to Preserve Wolf Set for Action

Measure Provides Temporary Funds for River's Protection

Special to The Post-Crescent
MADISON — The Senate Conservation Committee met in executive session this morning to consider a bill that would temporarily provide funds to preserve scenic areas of the Wolf River.

Sen. Clifford Krueger, R-Merrill, chairman of the committee, said this morning he "saw no problem" with approval of the bill by the committee.

The bill, which provides state funds for the interim period until Congress appropriates funds under the federal Wild Rivers Act, was scheduled for a hearing before the Senate committee Tuesday, but action was postponed until today.

It calls for three years of state appropriations to maintain the scenic areas. After that it is presumed that federal funds will be available.

The federal Wild Rivers Act was passed in September, 1968. It aims specifically at prevention of commercial and industrial exploitation of the Wolf and several other Wisconsin streams.

A large section of the Wolf in Langlade County would be protected under the bill. In all 24 miles of Wolf frontage are expected to receive protection.

About $17 million in federal land acquisition is expected under the measure.

Boaters Warned About Fox River

Appleton police today warned of the danger of boating in waters just above dams on the Fox River.

The warning came after a woman called police Tuesday and said her two boys and the another youth were barely able to get their small, home-made boat to shore after launching it near Lutz Park. There was a motor on the boat.

She told police the boys underestimated the swiftness of the current which was caused by the opening of several dam gates. The boys, she said, when they got the boat to shore under the Memorial Drive bridge.

The board will name a chairman at a later date. The commission replaces the park subcommittee formerly headed by DeWitt.

Beyer has been in business in Appleton for the past 18 years. He and his wife, Ila May, have two children, Wayne, 18, and Sandra, 14.

In another council election, Ald. Al Stoegbauer (1st) — the dean of Appleton aldermen with 22 years' service — was re-elected to another term on the city plan commission, also being picked on the first ballot.

Enjoys Assignment

Stoegbauer, a retired employee of the First National Bank of Appleton, thanked his colleagues for their vote of confidence and said he has the time to devote to the work. He enjoys serving on the commission, he said.

Buckley made several appointments — a few of them questioned — but all confirmed by the council. They include:

—Harold Wolfgram, a former alderman who lost in the last election, to a five-year term on the fire and police commission succeeding Richard Van Sistine, whose term expired; Lloyd Doerflinger, reappointed to a three-year term on the Appleton Plan Commission, of which he is a veteran member; Alvin E. Tews (5th) and John Ayers (12th) reappointed to the city parking commission; Ald. Bruce Stutzman (1st), a two-year term on the board of health; Drs. Charles E. Fenelon, Robert DeCock and Walter Grossman, re-appointed to the board of health; Ald. George Schwarzbauer (10th), a one-year term on the board of heating examiners; Ald. George Reynolds (7th), one-year term on the board of electrical examiners; Ald. Arthur Hoolihan (11th), one-year term on the board of building inspections; and Roger Rindt, superintendent of parks, to another term as city weed commissioner.

Strutz and Buckley got involved in some political sparring by the opening of several dam gates. The boys, she said, when they got the boat to shore under the Memorial Drive bridge.

Charge Youth With Selling Of Marijuana

A charge of possessing and selling marijuana was brought this morning against an 18-year-old Appleton West High School senior.

Michael C. Loeper, 1714 S. Perkins St., is alleged to have sold a small amount of marijuana Feb. 14 to a 17-year-old Menasha youth. The alleged sale took place in Appleton.

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer continued further court proceedings to Thursday morning to allow Loeper time to consult an attorney.

The youth, who was taken into custody Tuesday night, was returned to jail under $500 bond following his court appearance.

Loeper was charged following investigation by Appleton and Menasha police. The 17-year-old youth alleged to be involved appeared earlier in Winnebago County Juvenile Court, police said.

He told the council he saw no reason why the mayor should

Appleton Council Plans Busy Night With 3 Meetings

The Appleton city council will hold a tripleheader tonight.

At 6:30 p.m. it will host counterparts from Neenah, Menasha and Kaukauna at a showing of the film, "Crisis in the Cities."

The public school district fiscal control board — made up of city aldermen and four town chairmen — then will meet to take action on a proposed $2,500,000 bond issue for school construction and remodeling.

And at 7:30 p.m. the council will have its first regular business meeting of the new legislative year.

All meetings — open to the public — will be at the city hall.

Fire Fighter Injured in Fall

Thomas Buss, 26, 210 N. Summit St., an Appleton fire fighter, was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital by fire department rescue squad about 9:10 a.m. today after he fell from a ladder at the city's No. 2 fire station on S. Lawe Street.

Buss reportedly suffered injuries to his right knee and elbow. He was kept at the hospital.

Reports indicated Buss was doing maintenance work at the station when a ladder broke. He reportedly fell only a few feet.

Ald. Bruce Stutzman (1st) and Glenn W. Thompson (13th) also were critical of the mayor for having Ald. John Steidl (18th) serving on four different committees when some aldermen were only on one.

"If you question my judgment, feel free to vote against any appointee you wish to," Buckley retorted.

The appointment of Steidl to the park-recreation commission was approved 17-3.

He told the council he saw no reason why the mayor should each year the city's assessed valuation has increased, pointing to last year when the tax base boost amounted to 6 per cent.

New Building
"With all the new building going on in Appleton, plus the starting of new industries, expansion of old industries, and new and expanded commercial development, I look for an increase in valuation of about 8 per cent for this year—perhaps even more," Buckley said.

Buckley believes reducing the tax rate could be accomplished by permitting each department to increase its proposed budget by a percentage that would keep all departments within the additional revenue to be derived by the city due to the increase in assessed valuation.

"We look to the state and federal governments, but surely we can't rely on them for any relief from steadily rising taxes," Buckley said.

Tarr Proposals
The mayor said if Appleton and other central cities in the state are to check the property tax escalation, it is imperative for the Wisconsin Legislature to act favorably on the Tarr Task Force proposals and bills, and to take action during the current session.

In urging the legislature to act, Buckley said the task force recommendations for more equitable tax distribution for muls and annexation law reform would provide the cities relief which taxpayers have been seeking for years.

"With your cooperation, it can be done," he concluded.

Bogus 'Bank Examiners' Swindlers Again Work In Area, Police Warn

Appleton police Tuesday warned that "bank examiner" swindlers again are suspected of operating in this area.

The police warning is aimed primarily at elderly women, the most frequent targets of the swindlers who, in recent years, have hit with regularity in Appleton.

Last July 18, an 85-year-old northside woman lost $350. Two months earlier, two confidence men posing as bank representatives conned an 81-year-old woman out of $370. A year earlier, an Appleton woman lost $1,750 through the same scheme.

Probably the most glaring example of how effectively the bank examiner scheme works with elderly persons is the case of the Appleton woman who was bilked out of $2,900 by a "bank examiner" in October 1966. All of the above cases remain unsolved, as do most others involving "bank examiner" swindle operations around the country.

A detective said that if the elderly segment of the public keeps being reminded and warned that the scheme does exist, people might take necessary precautions.

Bank personnel throughout the area also have been advised on proper procedures they can take if they suspect a customer is withdrawing money after having been contacted by a purported bank examiner.

Police said there have been instances where alert bank tellers have thwarted such swindle attempts.

and colored pictures, but also had some written material. Schreiter, when asked by Long, said he believed some of the pictures were "obscene."

'Not Qualified'
However, when Long asked him to define obscene, Court's attorney objected, saying that Schreiter was "not qualified to speak for the standards of the nation," as he held is required under obscenity laws.

Schaefer upheld the attorney's objection, saying that such a determination is up to the court, not to the witness.

The defense attorney did not cross-examine Schreiter, nor did he submit any testimony.

The attorney moved for dismissal of the complaint on grounds that it failed to allege intent on Court's part and that only certain pictures, and not the magazines per se, were alleged to be obscene.

The attorney said he would make further motions later.

Shows Location

The map admitted as evidence, which was expected to be the basis of considerable probing during this afternoon's session, shows locations of ready mix operations in which Courtney and Plummer families and Meilahn, along with Inland Trucking, have interests.

The trial is expected to last through the end of the week.

In a previous case involving Courtney and Plummer, and the Valley Contractor Material Suppliers Association, an NLRB trial examiner found there was no allied ownership under the meaning of the Labor Act. The uniques have appealed the decision which found them guilty of unfair labor practices.

The case involving the three Appleton unions and Oshkosh Ready Mix represents another chapter in the long-running dispute, and recent turns of events have resulted in the subject of ownership being reopened.

Trial Judge Eugene Frey, Washington, D. C., also denied a petition by company attorneys to quash a subpoena the unions had served on David Courtney Jr. to testify and produce corporate records.

The trial examiner said at one point that the possibility of "horizontal integration" between Oshkosh Ready Mix, Twin City Concrete and Courtney and Plummer and other ready mix concerns in the area may exist and indicated exploration of the ownerships was relevant to the case.

Beef Wellington

Sweet-Sour Chicken Wings

Pecos Burgers

Perfect for Penny-Pinching

By Lillian Mackesy POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR

HERE are ways to penny-pinch with success to beat the high cost of food, especially now that tax-time has arrived and barely gone. It's not even incompatible to crow a little . . . celebrate that fact that those 1040 forms are on their way, along with the state income tax. The idea behind a party, of course, is to plan the fun in an unlimited way but keep the budget tightly reined.

High protein foods such as ground beef or chicken can help with the penny pinching attitude. Consider the all-of-a-kind parts of chicken sometimes among the bargains. An example are chicken wings from the meat counter. Braised in a sweet sour sauce and served with rice or noodles, they make a delicious and economical supper dish.

A poor man's Beef Wellington can be an elegant way to dazzle guests. Instead of the usual whole filet of beef, wrap ground beef in pastry after it's been spread with a brandy-laced liver paste. Save some of the pastry to use for creative criss-cross or diamond-shaped trim. Then there's a recipe for Pinwheel Meat Loaf that's good-old-fashioned meat loaf but with a difference. This is a swirl of meat, cheese and bread stuffing that makes the meat loaf a real special designed for company serving. The ground beef never looked so appetizing. . . nor does it taste more delicious.

Then there is a recipe for Baked Barbecued Chicken which has a sauce that may be substituted for beef such as fat, juicy burgers or short ribs. Pecos Burgers, another idea, consist of economical ground beef with a zippy flavor that comes from one of those ready-mix envelopes. . . in this case Chili-O seasoning mix. This recipe is an excellent budget stretcher because most youngsters like burgers first, best and last as their favorite meat choice.

Yankee Pot Roast long has been good eating, ever since the day the earliest settlers prepared their first venison or other woodland animal. Beef chuck has become the meat for pot roast today, succulently teamed with favorite vegetables after a thorough browning of the meat and a long, slow simmering. Faithful to the ways of New England even today, pot roast gives a maximum of flavor at a minimum of cost. The trick for the modern housewife to follow is to keep alert to "specials". . . when it's pot roast, purchase an extra large one and plan a second-day dish for the leftover meat. To make sure there are leftovers, cut what's needed for a second-day serving before the first-day Yankee Pot Roast is served. . . it's that good and might be gobbled up!

The Pinwheel Meat Loaf can be made ahead of time, shaped and refrigerated early in the day or even the day before it's to be served. Then it is ready to slide into the preheated oven at the proper moment. First the well-seasoned beef mixture is rolled into an even layer on a heavy sheet of aluminum foil or waxed paper. Then, the meat is covered with a layer of stuffing.

Pinwheel Meat Loaf

Roll, as with a jelly roll, pressing the meat together to hold the shape. Chill the roll of stuffed meat until baking time. Prepare the mild cheese sauce while the meat loaf is baking, ready to serve piping hot over the pretty, pinwheel slices.

This really is a great recipe, but so are all the others, beginning with the Baked Barbecued Chicken with its sauce just as delicious on short ribs or fat burgers.

- BAKED BARBECUED CHICKEN
- 1/2 cup catsup
 - 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 - 1 tablespoon salad oil
 - 1 tablespoon Worcestershire Sauce
 - 1 tablespoon prepared yellow mustard
 - 1/4 teaspoon orange peel
 - 1 broiler-fryer chicken cut up (or 3 pounds lean beef short ribs, cut into serving size pieces)
- Combine all ingredients except chicken; blend well. Bake chicken in roasting pan in 475 degree

Easy Desserts Economical Yet Delicious

Dessert quickies in the area of plentiful fruits make for sensible penny-pinching to keep the food budget down. Bananas both plentiful and bargain priced in most Fox and Wolf valley markets make fine desserts or garnishes for meats. Canned fruits, often on the multiple cans for one dollar among the canned food bargains, also can be used to create appealing and nutritious family desserts. It happens these recipes are teamed with the fairly new granulated brown sugar on the market — so easy to use and a blessing to store because it never hardens on pantry shelves. The product was introduced in test markets about five years ago and has been a popular regular in most stores ever since. The recipes from home economists in the kitchens of the granulated brown sugar processors have come up with the following excellent recipes:

BROILED BANANAS WITH GREEN GRAPES
Roll firm peeled bananas in lemon juice. Place in buttered shallow baking dish. Brush with melted butter or margarine. Sprinkle with granulated brown sugar and additional lemon juice. Top with dash of ground cloves and cinnamon. Place 3 inches under open broiler; broil about five minutes. Turn bananas over. Add grapes. Brush both fruits with butter and sprinkle bananas with additional sugar and spices. Broil another five minutes or until golden brown. Serve at once.

BAKED PEACHES
8 large fresh or canned peach halves
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons hot water
1 cup granulated brown sugar
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
Nutmeg
Salt
Dip peaches in lemon juice; roll in half-cup sugar. Place two tablespoons of water in buttered shallow baking dish; arrange peaches with cut side up in dish. Dot with butter. Sprinkle with remaining sugar, nutmeg and salt. Cover and bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 20 minutes. Uncover; baste peaches with syrup from dish. Place six inches under broiler; broil additional three to five minutes, or until peaches are browned. If used for dessert, serve with whipped cream or cultured sour cream. Recipe makes eight servings as meat garnish or four servings as dessert.

SPICY BAKED PEARS
1 large can Bartlett pears
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/4 cup granulated brown sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons butter or margarine
Nutmeg
Salt
1 tablespoon water
Whipped cream or sour cream
Drain pears, dip fruit in lemon juice, then roll in half-cup brown sugar. Place cut

More About Food Labeling Compare Brands, Grades, Sizes to Get Best Buy

Take time to read labels and compare brands, grades and sizes. These are the keys to many savings, according to Rosemary Stare, consumer marketing specialist at the University of Wisconsin. Canned whole fruits, for example, make attractive salads, but cut varieties in baked desserts taste just as well and may be much less expensive.

Besides giving the brand name of the product, the net contents and who makes the product, labels give consumers other important information. Manufacturers help by giving consumers descriptive information such as a clear picture of the product, the color, the degree of seasoning and often a recipe or suggestion for preparation and serving. And they may include suggestions for storing after opening.

Choose Wisely
If you'll look on most labels you'll see a brand name so you can readily identify the product next time you shop. The label will also tell the size or degree of maturity, for products like peas, so you can choose young peas or mature ones according to your family's preference. The manufacturer may also provide a statement giving the number of cups in the can. And the number of suggested servings is stated, the manufacturer must state by law how large each suggested serving is. This helps you determine values. With this information you'll be able to determine just how much to buy and which brand will give you the most for your money.

Amount in Each
Remember though, two look-alike packages (of equal size but different brands) may not contain the same amount of product. It is up to you to read the fine print and do your own mathematical calculations to figure the price per ounce. The information is given. You decide the best buy.

Opening lead — ♠ 5

There was some possibility that West had led from the doubleton 5-2 of spades, but Burger remembered that South had used the Stayman Convention by bidding two clubs in response to one notrump. This shows an interest in the major suits. If South held five good hearts and only three spades, he would have jumped to three hearts instead of bothering to bid two clubs first.

Acting on this reasoning, Burger returned the four of spades at the second trick. West ruffed and returned a club to the ace, whereupon Burger led another spade. West's second ruff defeated the contract.

Declarer's Slip
If South recognized the opening lead as a singleton he should take the first trick with the ace of spades. He would draw trumps, run three diamonds to discard two clubs and then lead the low spade from dummy. This would limit the defenders to two spades and one club regardless of the position of the club ace.

As the cards lie, South could discard one club and one spade on the top diamonds and then lead a club from dummy to assure a trick with the king of clubs.

The whole question, then, is whether South should recognize the opening lead. Since South had indicated length in both majors, West would need a very good reason to lead spades. What better reason than a singleton? Give South a black mark for his play at the first trick, but get a medal ready for Burger.

Daily Question
Partner opens with 1-NT (16 to 18 points), and the next playing passes. You hold: S-K Q 9 7 4, H-7 6 5, D-J 7, C-A J 7. What do you say?

Answer: Bid three spades. This asks partner to bid game spades if he has three or more spades; and to bid game in notrump if he has only two. You force to game with your own 11 points in high cards guaranteeing a combined holding of 27 to 29 points.

The Trouble With Today's Sex Education

"When a youngster becomes a teenager, it's often too late to teach him much about sex. But that doesn't mean we ought to write off teenagers where sex education is concerned. They need all the help they can get. That's the opinion of Dr. Lloyd Melis, professor of special education at Carthage College, Kenosha, Wis., whose job it is to prepare future teachers in line with his "better late than never" thinking. Dr. Melis advises future teachers that they, their students, and their parents, read the same books about sex.

"Then, at home and in class, discuss honestly and openly all of the meanings and implications of the things read," he said. "With the right materials this can be done without any awkwardness or embarrassment."

Dr. Melis feels that books themselves, no matter how good, won't provide sex education for anyone. "But, good books coupled with good teachers, enlightened parents, and interested students, can get a great deal done that has not yet been done," he said. Dr. Melis, who is also educational consultant to Hertzberg, New Method, Inc., Jacksonville, Ill., has recommended that teachers, parents, and teenagers read a series of new books dealing specifically with sex and teens.

The 11-book set for schools and libraries is available both in Perma-Bound and paperback versions. The set includes: "On Becoming a Woman"; "Sex and the Adolescent"; "Love and the Facts of Life"; "Sex Education and the Teenager"; "Teenage Marriage and Divorce"; "Love and Sex in Plain Language"; "Facts of Love and Marriage for Young People"; "Ann Landers Talks to Teens About Sex"; "Love, Sex and the Teenager"; "Teen Love, Teen Marriage"; and "Sex Before 20."

Source of Controversy
"The trouble with education and sex is that many people have a very limited view of sex education," said Dr. Melis. "They feel that it is primarily factual information about sexual intercourse. It is this limiting view that gets them all worked up when someone mentions sex education in the schools, especially the elementary schools."

"Many people all too often feel that sex is something that, because one has it, one automatically understands it. Then to teach anything about it is obviously unnecessary," he continued. "Other people feel that sex education is the job of the home, and that the school is trespassing when it gets into the area at all. Yet, as we all can see, and as any social worker or sociologist can tell us, parents generally have done a miserable job of teaching their offspring about sex. Perhaps fear or ignorance, or perhaps a combination of the two, have kept parents from this important task."

Least Effective Approach
"Many schools delude both themselves and others when they advertise as 'sex education' the movie shown usually to fifth or sixth graders. This movie generally tells them about the physical changes boys and girls undergo en route to becoming mature men and women. Few of the kids learn anything very new as a result of this for at best it may be construed as an attempt to pass on the biological aspects of development through puberty," he added.

Dr. Melis feels this approach is the least effective form of sex education. "The best of sex education, by contrast," he said, "lies in other areas. Sex education revolves around an understanding of self; around an understanding of self in relationship to others; and around an understanding and acceptance of one's own sex and the roles described for or played by men or women."

When Education Begins
Dr. Melis continued: "Sex education begins when a small child has his hand slapped for genital play. Sex education begins when a small child is spanked because he and his little girl playmate were curious enough to wonder why they were physically different. Sex education begins when a child observes the relationship between his mother and his father. Sex education is, in many respects, pretty solidly accomplished by the time a child walks through the door of the school."

"The movie at sixth grade will accomplish little. It's about time schools, parents, and the kids get together and start reading the same books; asking each other questions; and answering intelligently."

Commander's Wife Says Future 'Dream Come True'

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The tall, elegant wife of Gen. Andrew Jackson Goodpaster says his assignment as NATO and U.S. commander in Europe is "a dream come true."

She added that he had had his eye on the job since serving in Europe as a lieutenant colonel in 1951.

"We used to look up and see the commander and think: 'Wouldn't that be good one day?' Now it's true. I am just delighted. This is a real, real treat. It's like a dream come true."

Been 'Saigon Wife'

For the past six months Mrs. Goodpaster has been one of a group known as "Saigon wives" — women living in Bangkok whose husbands are serving in Vietnam.

Except for a rare visit from her tall, silver-haired, handsome husband, the deputy American commander in Vietnam until he takes up his new assignment this summer, she has lived alone. One of her daughters is married to astrophysicist Roger J. Sullivan.

Mrs. Goodpaster

The other is to be married in May to Robert Wilson, an engineer now attending officer candidate school.

The wedding is slated to take place at Ft. Myer, Va., and Mrs. Goodpaster expects to be there, though she says: "She is just 20 and I think too young to get married, but that's the way it is today."

After the wedding she will head for Europe. Mrs. Goodpaster has spent her time here playing a little golf; she belongs to a bowling league, swims in her backyard pool and does Red Cross work.

"I picked Bangkok over Manila because it was closer to Saigon and because it's such a fascinating city," she commented. She visited Saigon last Thanksgiving and found it "very interesting."

"One of the best things about the new assignment is that we can be together again."

The Misunderstood Potato

It's not the potato, but the dieter's blue cheese dressing, gravy that's fattening. A medium-sized potato weighs in at 100 calories at the most. A mere tablespoon of gravy comes in at 90 calories on the average.

Actually, plain-cooked potatoes are recommended to reducers — at least three a week. But the idea of anything plain-cooked is seldom attractive to the reducing contingent. Yet, you just know you wouldn't gain weight if you enjoyed simple food in normal quantities.

Like most foods, the potato can be prepared in ways that satisfy the gourmet palate without exceeding a reducer's calorie limits. For instance:

New Potatoes Parsley Boil 12 tiny new potatoes in skins and drain well. Place 1 tablespoon salt and 1/4 cup chopped parsley in heavy brown paper bag. Add potatoes and shake well. (Serve 1 potato per person.)

Potato Balls. Scoop out with melon baller, cook in steamer with dill weed until just done (1 potato per person.)

Cheese Bake. Halve and scoop out a medium baked potato. Fork meal with 1 tablespoon

Auxiliary Marks 34th Birthday at Dinner Sunday

Mrs. Lillian Campbell, Neenah, past National VFW Auxiliary president, and Mrs. Leone Morrissey, Madison, Department Auxiliary president, were special guests when the men of Post 2778 prepared and served a 34th birthday dinner to members of the auxiliary Sunday evening.

Special recognition was given to all past and present department, district and local officers. Mrs. Morrissey spoke about projects of the Auxiliary and brought special attention to the bumper sticker sold to raise money for the cancer fund.

Chairman was Leroy Ruwoldt, who also accepted a desk set of United States and Wisconsin flags for the Post from the Auxiliary.

Motherhood and Sophia Loren

Now that she is a mother, something went wrong. I got mad right away. Now I don't. Anything can happen to me; I don't care any more. I feel "different," but she would give up her career tomorrow if it interfered with her role as a mother, a magazine article revealed today. "If an actress does not know her real life, sometimes she doesn't know where to get them," the actress confided in an exclusive interview for Redbook magazine. "And the feeling of serenity and warmth I know now, I think will make me more precise in my work. Now I would play that film (Two Women) differently."

Miss Loren, who tried for years to have a child and succeeded in December of last year when she gave birth to a son, said that she is now much more rational and secure. "It's incredible how a child can give security, self-control. I see things calmly. Before, when sure he has good reasons to say it's wrong but... The famous actress who gave up one year of being Sophia Loren in order to have a baby, said she will raise the child with the aid of Dr. Benjamin Spock, but that she disagrees with him when it comes to feeding. Carlo Ponti Jr., likes to eat, "so it's bad for him to have the American system. He has to be scheduled. He is growing too much and we're worried... We weigh him before and after every feeding so I can adjust, because sometimes he gets too little and sometimes too much."

Miss Loren contends that a "hormone deficiency" was the reason for her two previous miscarriages. "I took a great deal of hormones all during this pregnancy. Estrogen and a progestin. Those are two hormones you need very badly to keep your baby. That's why I lost my other two babies — because they didn't give me any of the hormones which I'm lacking."

Parents and Children

Minimizing the Problems of A New Baby in the House

The prospect of another baby can raise possible problems with your older child or children. The older child, whether a toddler, pre-school child, or even older, may resent the new baby. The new baby's arrival means a lessening of attention and time spent on him. In most cases the older child will compete, clamor for attention, and misbehave to attract notice.

It's common among toddlers to revert to earlier habits. They may openly or secretly want to go back on the bottle. Let them. Don't make a "thing" of it. Some children may even be hostile to the new baby, break his toys "accidentally," or even do him some damage under the guise of clumsiness. Your older child may become very possessive about his toys. Set him up with his own things in a special corner. Let him play with baby's things. Most of these problems can be prevented, guarded against, or diverted if you are aware of and sympathetic to your older child's feelings.

Bring home a new doll or other toy for your older child when you and baby come from the hospital. Include your older child in planning for his new baby brother or sister. When you feed or play with your baby, pay special attention to your older child. Let him help you as much as possible. Praise him, especially for anything he does well. Persuade Dad to pay the older child extra attention, to take him on special treats or outings while the new baby is born and during his first months at home. Your older child is then assured that the advent of a brother or sister takes nothing away from him. And pretty soon your older child will accept his baby brother or sister as part of the family, without feeling in competition with him.

Don't neglect to tuck your older child in bed at night and to show him lots of affection. Don't shoo him off to bed by himself "because you're a big boy or girl, and not a baby like your brother or sister." There is nothing that will make your older child resent the latest addition to the family as being made to feel that he's no longer entitled to love and snuggling, merely because there's a new baby in the house.

Home at last, with your first baby in your arms — and a wobble in the knees! To have more fun with the baby, parents can now get some expert reading help from the booklet, "Your New Baby." Send 25 cents and your name and address to Arnold Arnold, Dept. F., in care of this newspaper.

The Ailing House Cabinets Are Difficult To Remove

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: Now we are in the process of having new cabinets installed in our kitchen. Our old birch unit was nailed to the wall when the house was constructed. A year later, we had ceramic tile put on the walls and the cabinets were locked in. How can we best remove the birch cabinets without too much damage to cabinets or tile? — McKeesport, Pa.

A: This is one omelet where you have to break eggs. Unless you can fit a wrecking bar or hammer the end of a screwdriver between the wall and the top of the cabinet back and start prying, something will have to give. I suggest trying to dismantle. With doors, shelves and top off, you'll have a better chance to pry sections loose without harming the surrounding tile.

Q: Since landlords nowadays do not clean apartments when rented, we have been living for five years with horrible flowered wallpaper. I mean they are big flowers. Is it possible to hide them with paint? — Woodhaven, N.Y.

A: You can certainly try, but it's a knack to get it drawn tight, and smooth, with each part of the pattern exactly the same size as its neighbors. I mean, don't be disappointed if your first effort didn't come out as perfectly as the original. After all, it took that artisan some time to learn how to do it well enough for your chairs.

However, it's definitely not difficult to learn, and a lot of people get quite a kick out of doing it. Look at the lovely weaving and caning jobs turned out by institutions for the blind.

His Actions Indicate He Needs Checkup

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have been married for 25 years. We have four fine children and a comfortable home. Our marriage is far from perfect but I consider it as good as most. Last night Vernon insulted me in a way I shall never forget. He brought home a safe with a lock on it bigger than my head.

When we got ready for bed.

Vernon took his billfold out of his pocket, scooped up his small change, removed his cuff links and watch and put everything in the safe. He didn't say one word about the whole time, just gave me a sort of a triumphant look and turned off the light.

Ann. I have never taken a

thing in my life that didn't belong to me. I wouldn't dream of snooping through Vernon's pockets. Why he chose to insult me this way is a total mystery. Our house has never been robbed so he can't be worried about burglars.

Vernon has always been on the quiet side and kept to himself. He is 52 years old and seems to be in good health. What do you make of this? — Mystified

DEAR ANN LANDERS:

Dinner Dance Scheduled by Sly Fox Ski Club

As a finale to the ski season, the Sly Fox Ski Club will meet this evening at the Embassy Supper Club for a dinner and dance. A 6:30 cocktail hour will precede the 7:30 p.m. dinner.

A variety of awards will be presented to members at the dinner.

The group, which numbers about 80 persons from the Fox Cities, has provided ski instruction this season at the Post-Crescent Ski School, as well as two sessions for members.

A calendar of events for this summer and next season is being prepared by the board of directors.

Of all the crackpot ideas, this one takes the cake. What in the world has happened to good old-fashioned honesty? Teen-agers behave according to the standards they are raised by. The values learned as young children are deeply ingrained by the time they are 12 years of age. When I was 16 I wouldn't have touched a dollar if a million of 'em were stacked up in front of me simply because I was taught not to take things that didn't belong to me.

Now they've twisted things up so the person who leaves the keys in the car is just as guilty as the kid who steals it. How crazy can the sociologists get?

— Born Too Late

Dear Born: I agree, some kids wouldn't dream of stealing a car, keys or not, but the point of the article was that we shouldn't make cars stealing easy because kids are borderliners and behave impulsively.

No matter how you look at it, there has been an appalling increase in car stealing — nearly 65 per cent of all car thefts in 1967 were pulled off by teen-agers.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits — the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

WINE On the Table

By William Clifford

To chill or not to chill — that is the question. At least that's a question people often ask when I speak about wine at a tasting and invite queries from the audience.

As with so many other aspects of the enjoyment of wine, the first answer is to do what you like. But there are certain practices that a majority of wine drinkers have found work best.

Most people do not chill red wine. They serve it at room temperature, which means from 65 degrees to 70 degrees — the temperature of European rooms rather than ours.

Chill Beaujolais At cellar temperature of 55 degrees or even colder, most red wines are somewhat "dumb," i.e., closed up and uninviting. An exception is Beaujolais, which often seems more appealing when slightly chilled, about 60 degrees, especially in warm weather.

White and rose wines are usually chilled to 45 degrees or 50 degrees. But you may find more taste, and still more bouquet, in white wines a bit warmer. If you have a serviceable thermometer, try chilling a light white wine — a California Chardonnay, Italian Verdicchio, or French Chablis — to 40 degrees. Taste it at that temperature, then about every five degrees as it warms up to room temperature. Chances are you'll like it warmer than you thought you would.

Sparkling wines should always be served well chilled. So should sweet white dessert wines. Some people chill dry sherry (I do), but not too much — cellar temperature is enough. Don't chill sweet sherry or port.

If you don't have an ice bucket there's no harm in chilling wine in the refrigerator, even if you get it too cold. Just let it warm up in the room until your palate says it's ready to drink.

POOR MAN'S

BEEF WELLINGTON
2 pounds ground lean beef
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon basil
1/4 cup minced onion
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1/2 cup soft bread crumbs
1/2 cup beef bouillon

Roll out reserved dough and cut into strips or other shapes. Decorate loaf as desired. Brush with milk. Bake in 425-degree oven for 20 minutes, or until crust is golden brown. Marketing Memo

Food Prices Stay High, Plan Shopping With Care

Food prices have continued to rise so far this year. The overall increase, however, is not expected to be as sharp as last year.

To keep food costs in line, plan meals and shopping trips carefully, advises Rosemary Stare, consumer marketing specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

As you plan before you shop, make a list. It's a good idea to include produce items in season. When fruits and vegetables are at or near their peak of supply, you get the double value of high quality and attractive prices.

Low-Cost Meats

To trim your grocery bill further, look for low-cost meats. Consider the servings per pound along with the price of meat. Meat with a substantial amount of fat and bone is often expensive in terms of per serving cost.

Some convenience foods cost about the same as food prepared at home. Others are more expensive. Consider the time and effort saved along with cost when deciding which convenience foods fit into your family meals.

This week as you plan your food shopping you'll find there has been little change in meat prices. In beef, chuck cuts, ground beef and beef liver offer economical eating.

Best Buys

In pork, you'll find butt roasts, pork steaks, pork liver and some loin cuts reasonable. Fryers and turkey are moderately priced. Grade A large and medium eggs offer protein at reasonable cost.

Best buys in fresh vegetables include carrots, onions and potatoes. Endive, escarole, cabbage and celery are reasonable. Potatoes vary both in price and quality. Asparagus supplies are increasing so prices should be slightly lower. Grapefruit, oranges and

St. Olaf Alumni Elect Officers

Dr. Karle Erickson was elected president of the Fox River Valley St. Olaf College Alumni and Parents Club when the group met Thursday at Oakwood Hills Supper Club, Combined Locks. The Rev. Howard Nielsen, Peshigo, will serve as vice president and Mrs. Glenn Brovold, Green Bay, as secretary-treasurer.

Speaker at the meeting was Dr. Reidar Dittman, St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minn., director of International Studies program, who discussed the importance of overseas study for college students today to make them aware of people in other parts of the world.

bananas are top values in fresh fruit this week. Cantaloupe and strawberries are coming down in price as supplies increase.

$250 Bill Paid 22 Years Later

DENVER (AP) — A farmer from northeastern Colorado gave the government $250 Friday as payment in full for federal loans of $1,100 he received in 1947.

U.S. Atty. Lawrence M. Henry said the farmer, Albert C. O. Packer, apparently forgot about the debt and so did the government. It wasn't until December of last year that the Department of Agriculture sent a "payment due" notice to Packer, who lives in the small town of Jules, Colo.

"You know how bills are," said Packer. "If you aren't reminded to pay them a person kinde forgets."

Rush Bonds for Badly Needed Bridges

The announcement by Assemblyman Willis Hutnik that legislation is being prepared to authorize $40 millions in bonding to build 24 bridges in the state is most welcome news in this area. Hutnik, chairman of the Assembly Highway Committee, said the priority list of the bridges had been prepared by the state highway department.

Two badly needed structures in the Fox Cities area are included in the list. Memorial Drive bridge in Appleton, and the Little Lake Butte des Morts bridge at Menasha. There also are two at Green Bay, one at Sturgeon Bay, one at Oshkosh and one at Fremont.

There undoubtedly will be discussion and argument over the priority list. There is an obvious intent to spread the projects around the state. But the highway department also has conducted a number of traffic studies to determine which bridges get the most use and where there is the greatest need, and the Memorial Drive bridge here on this basis rates top priority.

The UW's Image

It has been a difficult biennium for the University of Wisconsin, with student riots on several notorious occasions, the weakest showing on the football gridiron in the memory of most of the Badgers' more youthful fans, resulting shake-ups in the athletic high command on the Madison campus, an indifferent showing on the basketball court, and now a skeptical and seemingly hostile legislature which holds the purse-strings for the school that will control its operations for the next two years.

Now is the time, in a parody of the ancient keyboard exercise, for all good alumni to come to the aid of their school, and thus we offer in all seriousness a suggestion to the University administration which has shown a certain appreciation of the value of a public relations in the modern sense.

Public relations, candidly defined, is image building. Its practitioners, especially in public services, cannot afford the risk of hiding the unfortunate or unwelcome experiences and accidents in institutional life.

But the practitioner who knows his profession is aware that he can exploit the positive, the good, the encouraging and admirable characteristics of his employer. It is not enough for the University to repeat that for every campus delinquent there are a hundred, or even a thousand,

There can well be some modification in the list, too, as the work proceeds. It is possible, for instance, that the expensive bridge proposed between Allouez and Ashwaubenon south of Green Bay might be financed by federal funds in connection with the interstate project, and that would free additional funds for other projects.

Appleton's proposed Oneida Street bridge was not initiated early enough to be included in the state's studies, but the city should certainly press now for it to be included at least in a second priority list.

The important consideration is that there now is an apparent realization at Madison that considerable money must be made available immediately to get at this task. Under the existing appropriation of $200,000 a year only 12 bridges have been built in the state in the last 24 years. And of what value is it to continue our highway improvement program if we don't at the same time eliminate the bottlenecks at the bridges?

young men and women dutifully and diligently pursuing their studies, that the vast majority of its faculty represent the best in academic life, that the University in all of its dimensions is truly one of the distinguished educational institutions in the land.

These things are known in an abstract way to most of the people of Wisconsin who care. But they need reminders, sometimes. They should see for themselves. And one of the most effective of the reminders, in our way of thinking, is to see a performance of the most attractive and wholesome musical groups it has been our pleasure to see and hear in many years.

If all the adult residents of Wisconsin could see in action a group of boys and girls known as The University Singers, we are confident that it would be the most effective means of making friends for the University that could be devised. Its director, Donald Newen of the School of Music faculty, explains that its purpose is to render popular music and song in a quality way, and we can testify that it has achieved its purpose magnificently. For the television program directors in this part of the state, we have a tip: a video tape of this charming student organization in action has recently been produced by a Madison broadcasting station, and is no doubt available at a slight fee, or on loan. Local alumni chapters, please note.

publications, and other efforts to curb their demonstrations. Regulations forbid men in uniform from taking part in protests, for instance, although they can while in civilian dress. And recently various civil liberties organizations have come to the defense of those accused of breaking such regulations.

Military authorities are clearly concerned. The sentences of several demonstrators in one military stockade were hastily reduced either from a realization of the injustice of the long terms or to prevent the convicted from becoming martyrs and encouraging recruits to their ranks.

While the number of active anti-war soldiers is very small, they have an influence considerably out of proportion to their numbers. Efforts to discourage them by the traditional military means of discipline has gained for some a certain amount of sympathy from their less ideologically concerned fellows. And it has widened the gap between officers and enlisted men, a differentiation that has always been out of keeping with American tradition anyway.

It is always difficult for a democracy to fight a war since an effective military organization can hardly be democratic. There is at present no real evidence of revolt in the armed services. But as opposition to the war continues to grow, there is always the possibility. Certainly two years ago few military authorities would have believed that there would be the extent of protest and resistance that there is today.

Meade Land Claim Rejected

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for April 21, 1869.

It must be conceded that the trial of the disputed land case of Edward L. Meade vs. Anson Ballard made no point as to the sufficiency of the tender (money paid), but the only question was whether the condition was performed, according to the decision of the U. S. Supreme Court as published by the Milwaukee News.

"That condition was, that a permanent location of the institute on the land should be made between the date of the deed (Sept. 7, 1847) and the same day of the succeeding year. The location then, whatever may have been its character, was something which could have been done and completed within one year.

"If it was done within that time, the plaintiff's right of reverter was gone. If it was not done within the year he could refund the money and recover the land. His right, on whatever it depended, must have been complete the 7th day of September, 1848.

"The thing to be done was the location of the institute. Did this mean that all the buildings which the institution might ever need were to be built within that time, or did it mean that the officers of the institution were to determine, in good faith, the place where the buildings for its use should be erected?

"It is clear to us that the latter was the real meaning of the parties, and that when the trustees passed their resolution locating the building on the land, with the intention that it should be the permanent place of conducting the business of the corporation (Lawrence University), they had permanently located the institute within the true construction of the contract.

"Counsel for the plaintiff attach to the word 'permanent' a meaning inconsistent with the obvious intent of the parties. Such a construction is something more than a condition to locate. It is a covenant to build and rebuild. A covenant against removal at any time. A covenant to keep up an institution of learning on that land forever or for a very indefinite time. This could not have been the intention of the parties.

"We are of the opinion that the testimony shows, in any view that can be taken of it, that the condition was fully complied with and performed and with it passed all right of reversion to the grantor or his heirs."

(Thus Anson Ballard retained the right to the land he had purchased, that originally belonged to Lawrence University. The Meade tract from Drew to Morrison Street, be-

A Word Edgewise

Have to be Football Fan to Understand This Scouting Report

BY JOHN P. ROCHE

About a month ago it was suggested in this column that President Nixon was the first quarterback in history who had substituted a huddle for a kickoff, that so far the decision-making process had been highlighted by an infinite series of meetings — and no decisions. It can be fairly stated that since that column was written nothing significant has happened to alter the evaluation. True, the Administration did come out of the huddle and start to run a play on the ABM (anti-ballistic missile), but the whistles blew and with both Senator Fulbright and Secretary of Defense Laird off side, the ball was returned to the line of scrimmage.

With time out for President Eisenhower's funeral, the team has been huddling ever since. It has now reached the point where before meetings are held on what many of us consider vital topics (Vietnam, poverty, ABM) an announcement is made that nothing of importance will be decided. This is convenient for the press, which does not have to hang around Key Biscayne wondering what spectacular project the President has in mind, and doubtless the White House correspondents are grateful. They are still recovering from a President on 220 volts who was likely to spring a major announcement on his way to church at 7:30 Sunday morning, or at 4 p.m. on July 4th, when all rational men were home in the pool or off to the beach with their families.

Nixon Is Cautious

Lyndon Johnson infuriated the press by his unstructured habits and they, in return, invented the "credibility gap." Admittedly, the President played into their hands by talking as freely as he did and those in search of contradictions could generally find useful quotes. President Nixon, in careful contrast, has handled them like pedigreed Siamese cats and there is no denying that, so far, the technique has paid off.

Can one imagine, for example, the howls if Johnson had told the press he was operating in secret with regard to the Paris talks and therefore no one in the government would give them a straight answer on the subject?

President Nixon pulled it off. Indeed, he even drew praise for his frankness and statesmanship. But with all appropriate discounting of partisan bias, I wonder how long he can get away with it. His latest move was to appoint a high-level commission to examine the efficiency of the executive branch. Again, instead of playing ball, the team is experimenting with backfield formations. There is talk of reorganizing the Agency for International Development (A. I. D.) into a public corporation — as if that would hide it from the attrition of Congressional appropriation committees. In short, the boys with the alphabet blocks are running all over Washington planning new combinations of HEW, HUD, OEO, etc., and behind the smoke screen thrown up by the reorganizers nothing is happening.

Bargaining Item
Take the defense of the ABM as a case in point. Secretary of State Rogers, cooing like a dove, explained to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that ABM was, in essence, a chip in the game with the Soviets. If the Russians would drop their defensive system, he indicated, we would be delighted to forget "Sentinel," "Safeguard" or whatever new name the ABM might pick up. In other words, Secretary Rogers implied (and he had some rough handling, which may have confused his arguments a bit) that ABM has no particular intrinsic value, that it was important only as a bargaining counter.

On the other hand, Secretary

Wisconsin Report

County Elections Likely to Continue Despite Tarr Report

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — Perhaps never before have the contents of any document similar to the recently completed Tarr commission study of local government and finance and organization in Wisconsin been communicated so effectively to the public. Newspapers have a right to be proud of their performance in this regard.

Notwithstanding the reams of publicity and explanation and interpretation, however, some of the conclusions of the Tarr commission remain relatively little known, doubtless because of the thoroughness of the commission's explorations and the necessarily prolix character of its findings.

Specifically, the Tarr commission had the courage to consider the sticky question that has troubled political scientists and others for many years — the long ballot involved in the selection of county officers.

WOULD MERGE SOME

But it also added realistically:

"Along with the permission to make positions appointive or elective, consideration should be given to the consolidation of positions or abolition of them where it seems feasible to do so. Smaller counties might wish especially to have this flexibility."

The average citizen with a moment's reflection will recognize the good sense of these suggestions. Why should a county of 10,000, for example (and there are some that are even smaller) have a clerk and a treasurer? Can the average person remember why he voted for most of the men and women for whom he voted last fall in the county elections? Does he know enough about most of them, beyond the fact that they are Republicans or Democrats? In most instances the answer is obvious. He doesn't.

DISCUSSION GENERATED

The Tarr commission acted usefully in provoking discussion and consideration of such matters. It is not likely, moreover, to encounter much opposition to its position on its merits.

The resistance will come, as it has come in the past when the League of Women Voters or an idealistic first term legislator and others have proposed to shorten the county ballot, or even to make county elections nonpartisan, from the party organizations of the state. It may be difficult to defend the idea that electing a sheriff at random is a profession of democracy when the chief of police is appointed on merit without any questions being raised about it.

But the election of county officials has a direct relation to the practical, pragmatic considerations of party politics. Collectively, these local officers campaigning on both tickets provide the most important sinew and glue that operates and binds together political party machinery.

That consideration will be more important in the future, with the state-house elections scheduled in nonpresidential years. Under such circumstances no legislature, under whatever party control, is likely to forfeit the help of hundreds of energetic local office seekers.

Trousers, Umbrellas Once Rated 'Way Out'

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When one hears people complaining about the new types of clothes being worn by young men and women these days, it is easy to take the view of the old lady who derided airplanes and wondered "why people don't travel by train, the way God intended them to."

Many of us act as if God, or some immutable law of nature, ordained clothes as they are today, and that any variation represents a violation of morality, common sense, and the Constitution.

In a book I mentioned a year or so ago, "How Did It Begin?" the author points out that even such commonplace objects as trousers and umbrellas came into existence the hard way. Yet what could be more accepted today than trousers and umbrellas, those symbols of morality, common sense, and the Constitution?

"Even as late as 1814," the book tells us, "The duke of Wellington was refused admission to his club because he was wearing trousers. . . . In Sheffield, a special clause pertaining to the clergy ruled that 'under no circumstances shall any preacher be allowed to occupy the pulpit who wears trousers.' Indeed, anyone so attired would not go to Heaven!"

The umbrella was introduced into Britain by Jonas Hanway (1712-1786), a Persian traveler. His use of it, about 1760, caused a disturbance among sedan chairmen and coachmen, who rioted at the sight of this strange object. Preachers and lecturers derided it as a "corruption" from the decadent East.

According to the author of "How Did It Begin?" Hanway "had to suffer ridicule and almost assault" when he first began carrying an umbrella through London streets. "Only when his example was followed by one of Britain's famous dandies, popularly known as Beau Macdonald, did the umbrella at last catch on. He, too, though was at first subjected to ignominy. His own sister refused to be seen with him in public.

Today, of course, the very epitome of British respectability is the gentleman striding toward the City in his striped trousers and his furled umbrella. A man who walked through the rain in breeches and without an umbrella would be looked upon as demented. I happen to think that the new clothes being worn by the young avant-garde are, for the most part, attractive, interesting and sensible. Those who complain about them should at least complain on some other ground than that they are radically different from what we are used to. So is the lunar module for space traveling.

Government Preparing To Hike Bond Interest

BY SYLVIA PORTER
 Belatedly but finally, the treasury is getting ready to increase the interest it pays to you, the 10,300,000-plus Americans who hold and regularly buy U.S. Savings Bonds above today's disgracefully out-of-date, shockingly unfair rate.

and then only if you hold the piece of paper to maturity in a full seven years. To financially knowledgeable buyers of its 4 1/2 per cent U.S. bonds, the treasury is requesting until after the private congressional committees have had a chance to weigh Kennedy is preparing a request to congress to eliminate the 4 1/2 per cent legal ceiling on new

So it will come. The timing of the boost is somewhat uncertain. Savings Bonds should not come with top rates in the marketplace and the bond does have several unique advantages. The greatest advantage of all is that you can buy them via a payroll deduction plan and thereby discipline yourself into regular, systematic saving. As Roche properly remarked, "Many employees wouldn't save at all unless they were enrolled in a payroll savings plan. It is a lot better to get only a mediocre rate on something than a sensational rate on nothing."

The new rate would also be paid on your outstanding bonds as of the date it goes into effect. This would be necessary to avert a mass cash-in of the $52 billion of outstanding bonds. Actually, it is astounding how many of you have kept buying Savings Bonds during this era of soaring interest rates.

In March, cash sales of the bonds and Freedom shares fell 9 per cent under March 1968, but still totaled $381 million. The proportion of our total savings in the bond is down from almost 26 per cent in 1960 but it's still at a respectable 12 per cent. The key, of course, is the payroll savings plan, for once it buyers tend to become "frozen" to it. Again to quote Roche, "there are better ways to invest, but there is no better way to save." It's a subtle but significant distinction.

And while the boost to a 5 per cent interest level will hardly make Savings Bonds a "growth investment," the payroll saver will have a fighting chance to stay even while he builds a nestegg.

Has Advantages
 But let's assume a boost by mid-summer and let's assume the new rate is in the 5 per cent range (give or take a little). This rate would be comparable to the anachronistic ceiling which was written into law back in the days of World War I.

Administrators at UWGB Urge Veto Of Budget Cuts
 GREEN BAY — A resolution adopted Monday by 19 members of the administrative staff of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay urges Gov. Warren Knowles to veto a bill slashing university appropriations.

Approval of the bill, the resolution states, would prove "extremely detrimental" to the program of the university during the remaining months of the fiscal biennium which ends June 30. Under its provisions, UW appropriations for part-time help and faculty support for non-instructional functions are cut by $400,000, and the student employment fund is cut to $75,000. Other provisions wipe out funds for purchasing library books and reduce supplies appropriations by $1.6 million.

The resolution points out that new campuses, including UWGB, are particularly hard-hit because the bill calls for immediate return of funds previously allocated.

New Companies Draw Criticism From Older Rivals
 By JOHN CUNIFF
 AP Business Analyst
 NEW YORK (AP) — The big plans of celebrity-promoted fast food franchises, and in some cases their swift growth, are drawing the anxious attention and often critical comments of the older, well-established companies.

Some of this concern might be for the potential competition from hamburger and sandwich shops using the names of sports and entertainment personalities. But often the criticism is about financing and methods.

With only one shop, for example, Broadway Joe's, Inc., recently raised $2 million from investors, the attraction being football star Joe Namath's association with the company as much as any successful restaurant experience. Thomas Marshall, president of the sandwich, hamburger and shrimp operation, says he's never been involved directly in the operation of restaurants, but adds, "We know we've got food that doesn't take a back seat to any other."

"We've Got Plans"
 He continues: "We've got an attractive building and a good menu. We've done our homework. We've got definite plans and we'll prove we know what we're doing."

"Lots of companies have been in business a lot longer and their resources are greater," he said by telephone. There is, he said, "a high degree of risk," but "we feel our potential is well in line with the risk involved."

Other people do also. The stock opened at $10 early this month, but now sells closer to $15. And Marshall says he has received about 1,500 applications for franchises.

How well does Broadway Joe's expect to do? "I'll let you know in five years," says Marshall. Echoing Joe Namath, he adds, "You have to think you're best. If you don't you might as well quit."

What if Joe Namath did quit? Wouldn't his publicity value be diminished? Wouldn't he fail to attract big crowds at openings of Broadway Joe's outlets?

"We feel very strongly that when he's through playing football he'll still be a personality," Marshall says.

Ray Kroc, chairman of McDonald's hamburger chain, questions the value of celebrity. What, he asks, would be the current fate of a restaurant promoted in the 1930s by using Will Rogers' image?

Kroc answers his own question. "The kids today wouldn't even know who he was," he says. And he suggests that something of the sort could happen to the present day image makers.

John Jay Hooker Jr., young president of Performance Systems, Inc., of Nashville, Tenn., one of the most impressive of the quick success stories, has an interesting theory about such images.

Hooker and his associates chose the name of Minnie Pearl, a country singer, to publicize their fried chicken enterprise because "she has the image of a decent, wholesome American woman who knows how to cook chicken."

Not Dependent
 Hooker, who was narrowly defeated for governor in 1966 and who may run again next year, feels that his franchise operation isn't dependent on a name.

"Any one name is not a panacea," he says. "It is only the beginning. You use the plus value of some living image as a starter. And then you build the image of the corporation."

He comments that many large companies personify their products by creating an image, such as Betty Crocker. Rather than create images, he says, the franchisers simply are using existing images to get off to a good start.

Hooker has demonstrated there is something to be said for the selling power of a celebrity, for with only six restaurants in operation, one of them company-owned, the Minnie Pearl operation raised more than $7 million a year ago.

Standard & Poor's Corporate Records explains the financing this way: "Proceeds were to be used—$4,047,000 to develop about 100

Minnie Pearl's chicken outlets, chicken and roast beef stores owned and operated by Co., and recently bought the Royal $2,640,000 to buy equipment to Castle restaurant chain of 179 be sold to franchisees; and the outlets. But the big first-year test to buy signs to be leased to profits were not so much from franchises. food sold as from the franchises sold.

1.5 Million Shares
 Performance Systems has just reported last year's results: said a few days ago, the company Revenues of $13,423,410 and sold 1,700 franchises at profits of $3,156,691. Hooker $10,000 each, "to hardnose says he and his brother invested businessmen, to investors, to so-$321,000 originally and now have sophisticated businessmen who 1.5 million shares selling at $17 understand the risks."

Now they have to get out and sell the sandwiches and chicken. The company has opened 125

Oshkosh Keglers Take Lead As Bowl-O-Rama Opens

Yankees Tip Senators Perranoski Saves Victory for Twins; Indians Snap Streak

BY TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

Minnesota Manager Billy Martin went out of his way not to talk to Ron Perranoski and the ace reliever responded with a silent treatment of his own.

The Twins managed to hang on to a 5-4 victory over Oakland rallied for two ninth-inning runs and had runners at first and second with two men out.

Perranoski was summoned in from the bullpen and the count on Ted Kubiak reached 3-1 when Martin, angered by plate umpire Jerry Neudecker's calls, raced to the mound as if to talk to his pitcher.

"I wanted to go out and talk to the umpire," said Martin. "I figured if I pretended to talk to Perranoski I wouldn't get thrown out of the game."

Taking Him Out

"Neudecker said 'Are you taking him (Perranoski) out?' and I said no. He told me to leave. So I asked him how his family was and left," Martin said.

Kubiak then walked to load the bases but Perranoski got Ray Capaneri to hit a game-ending forceout grounder and the Twins had their second straight victory after four losses.

In other American League games, Cleveland won its first game after five consecutive defeats, 3-2 over Detroit in 10 innings. New York slammed Washington 8-2 and Baltimore dropped Boston 10-5. Chicago, Kansas City, Seattle and California were not scheduled.

Minnesota got homers from Rich Reese, Harmon Killebrew and Tony Oliva but a ninth-inning run-scoring single by Oliva proved the winner. Killebrew's blast was the 399th of his career.

Jose Cardenal's sacrifice fly scored Max Alvis in the 10th inning for the Indians' first victory. Alvis singled with one out and moved to third on pinchhitter Cap Peterson's hit before Cardenal lifted his fly to right.

Willie Horton had a homer for the Tigers and Jose Azcuee rapped one for Cleveland.

Bobby Murcer cracked a single, double and home run, driving in four runs as the Yankees overpowered Washington in New York's home opener before a crowd of 13,889.

WSU-O Student, Dave Fischl, Cracks 244 Game, 859 Series; William Donker Tops Class B

BY JIM HARP
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

A pair of Oshkosh keglers stole the spotlight by sweeping into division leads as the seventh annual Bowl-O-Rama sponsored by The Post-Crescent got underway Tuesday night at the 41 Bowl.

Dave Fischl, a student at Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh, grabbed the Class A lead with a 859 total for four games, including handicap. In Class B, William Donker, Oshkosh, took first place with 824.

Opening night activity was limited to the two men's classes as no women had registered for the first session. Bowl-O-Rama activity continues tonight with a good-sized squad of keglers slated to roll at 7 p.m.

In addition to taking over the Class A lead, Fischl took the special squad prize on opening night with a booming 244 scratch game. He carried 20 pins handicap per game giving him a 264 total.

Contender For Boat

Along with the squad prize, Fischl stamped himself as a contender for one of the 14-foot Glass-Pab boats which will be awarded at the conclusion of the tournament. The boats will be given for the top scratch game and the top game, including handicap, recorded by men in the Bowl-O-Rama. Special prizes for the women's classes will be automatic dishwashers awarded on the same basis.

In the high 244 game, Fischl started with three spares in a row, connected for two strikes, then picked up another spare and proceeded to run five more strikes in a row before finishing with nine.

In taking the lead on opening night, Fischl had scratch games

Reds Win Slugfest From Giants, 11-10; Cubs Trip Pirates

By DICK COUCH

Alex Johnson tapped out a fast tempo and Andy Kosco more confidence and determination," said Osteen, who lost 18 of 30 decisions 1968. "Last year was the first sub .500 for me on this club and I didn't like it... and I don't want to see it again."

Johnson drove in five runs with two homers and a ground out, then tripled in the 12th inning and scored on Johnny Bench's single, sending the Cincinnati Reds past San Francisco 11-10 Tuesday night in a wild slugfest.

"Natural rhythm," the Reds' outfielder replied when asked to account for his rampage. "The ball is jumping off a little better."

Kosco, meanwhile, drummed out a grand slam homer and two-run double as the Los Angeles Dodgers ruined Johnny Podres' homecoming and crushed the San Diego Padres 14-0 behind the three-hit pitching of Claude Osteen.

Mets Post Win

Elsewhere in the National League, the New York Mets trimmed Philadelphia 6-3, snapping a four-game losing string. Houston topped Atlanta 4-2 behind rookie right-hander Tom Griffin. St. Louis edged Montreal 4-3 and Chicago beat Pittsburgh 7-4.

The Reds came from behind three times to deadlock San Francisco before winning in the 12th. After Johnson led off with a triple into the right field corner off Gaylord Perry, the Giants reliever fill the bases on two intentional walks.

Bench, who had fanned with two on and two out in the 10th, promptly broke up the game with the Reds' 20th hit.

"I didn't deliver the next to last time I was at bat," he said, "but I told them in the dugout, 'I'm going to win this game if I get another chance.'"

"It was a long, hard, tough one to lose," said Giants Manager Clyde King. "That's all you can say about this game."

Kosco, traded to Los Angeles by the Yankees last winter, matched the Dodgers' single game RBI mark since they went west in 1958 by tagging ex-Dodger ace Podres for his first grand slam in the majors and doubling in two runs against reliever Jack Baldschun.

Waupaca Out of CW New Conference Planned for Area

WAUPACA — Waupaca High School will pull out of the Central Wisconsin Conference and join seven schools from three other leagues to form a new athletic conference, according to Waupaca athletic director LeRoy E. Haberkorn.

Haberkorn disclosed the plan at a meeting of the Waupaca school board Tuesday night. The new conference would take shape in the 1970-71 school year.

The board authorized that a letter be written applying for admission to the Little Nine Conference. Another letter will be sent to Central Wisconsin Conference schools advising Waupaca's intent to join the new league.

Joining Waupaca in the new league would be Clintonville and New London from the Mid-Eastern Conference; Berlin and Ripon from the Little 10; and Omro, Winneconne, and Hortonville from the Little Nine.

Berlin is the largest of the schools with an enrollment of 800; Winneconne the smallest at 500.

77 Badgers in First Practice Coatta Pleased by Results of Off-Season Exercise Program

MADISON (AP)—Coach John Coatta welcomed 77 players Tuesday as the University of Wisconsin began spring football practice.

The first day of drills ended with 15 minutes of hard tackling and blocking.

Coatta, expressing pleasure with the squad's physical conditioning, credited a winter conditioning program for enabling the Badgers to open drills in better shape this season.

"There's a little popping going on out there the first day," he said.

Coatta's biggest problems will be finding a quarterback and filling holes in the defensive secondary and interior offensive line.

Yesterdays Stars

BATTING — Alex Johnson, Reds, tripled in the 12th inning and scored the winning run after driving in five runs with two homers and a ground out as Cincinnati topped San Francisco 11-10.

PITCHING — Claude Osteen, Dodgers, fired a three-hitter for his second successive complete game victory in a 14-0 romp over San Diego.

Picked by ABA Clubs Three State Cagers Drafted

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Three Wisconsin basketball stars—one each from Marquette, Stout State and the University of Wisconsin—were selected in the American Basketball Association's draft Tuesday.

George Thompson, Marquette's All-America honorable mention cager, was picked by the Minnesota Pipers. Carolina selected Mel Coleman of Stout State and Oakland chose Jim Johnson of Wisconsin.

ABA teams also chose two players who have been drafted by the Milwaukee Bucks of the National Basketball Association.

Two Exceptions

The New York Nets picked Lew Alcindor, 7-foot-1 1/2 super-star from UCLA, although Alcindor already has signed with Milwaukee. Miami drafted Bob

Greacen of Rutgers, whom the Bucks chose in the second round. The ABA announced the first few rounds of its draft. But with two exceptions, none of the teams would say who was picked in the first round. The league also refused to divulge the order in which players were chosen.

"Naturally I'm happy about being drafted by the ABA," Thompson said. But he refused to say whether he preferred the NBA to the ABA.

"The NBA has already held its first two rounds of the annual draft, and will complete its selections May 7.

"I suppose a lot of people are questioning where I will play in the pros," said Thompson.

One of Reasons for Cub Success Rookie Don Young Sparkles

Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Rookie Don Young, a 23-year-old outfielder who seems to apologize when he says hello, isn't wearing any hero mantle but he's one of the big reasons the Chicago Cubs are off to a fantastic start.

Young hasn't quite stepped into the limelight ala Ernie Banks, Billy Williams, Ron Santo or even Willie Smith as the Cubs have captured seven of their first eight decisions to take a two-game lead in the Eastern Division of the National League.

But the "Colorado Kid" has played centerfield in the absence of injured Adolfo Phillips capably and his .347 batting average has been a welcome surprise to the Cubs.

One Weakness

More important, however, is the fact if Young makes the grade he could help erase the one weakness the Cubs had at the start of the season.

The Cubs' big problem last year was right field and they did nothing in the way of trades to correct it.

They were tabbed as a team with two-thirds of an outfielder, one of Durocher's closest confidantes.

Young, a team with a one-third outfielder. "If and when the move is made," continued Amalfitano, "I can't say who will play where but I would imagine Adolfo would be the centerfielder with Young in right. Adolfo has greater speed and the experience. He knows where and how to play the hitters.

"It'd be great if Young makes it," said Pal Joey. "Imagine how much that would strengthen our bench."

Victory No. 7

The Cubs recorded victory No. 7 Tuesday by a 7-4 count at the expense of the Pirates.

Billy Williams hit a homer in the first inning to offset a Pirate homer by Roberto Clemente in the top of the inning and Young cracked a two-run homer in the second to put the Cubs ahead to stay.

It wasn't his first major league homer. He hit one in 1965 when he was up for a short stay with the Cubs.

"Remember it?" said Young.

"It was in Candlestick Park off Ron Herbel on a two-and-one count."

Commercial Fisherman Tells About Gloom in His Industry

MADISON (AP) — Pollution in alewives, but don't make any money at it, he said. They can wipe out Lake Michigan's population of worthwhile fish, and the surviving trout might just as well be turned over to commercial fishermen, conservationists were told Tuesday.

Francis Wenniger of Algoma, a commercial fisherman reflecting the gloom of his industry, told the Senate Conservation Committee: "A good fish hasn't got a chance in Lake Michigan."

He spoke during a hearing on a bill which would allow commercial fishermen to harvest a lake trout for every 1,000 pounds of alewife and other rough fish they removed from the lake or Green Bay.

John Brasch of the Department of Natural Resources said the harvest proposed in the bill would not help efforts to restore the lake's trout population, and that fishermen should be given a subsidy instead to offset the economic pinch of fishing reductions.

Lead to Harvest

"This bill," he said, "would lead to a harvest of 150,000 pounds of trout, and this is clearly too high."

Wenniger said commercial fishermen are simply "too proud" to settle for a subsidy, and that men of his industry should be kept in business just to help battle the alewives which die in hoards and spoil beaches.

"Wisconsin lost over $55 million in tourist trade when the fish washed up on the shores two years ago," he said.

"Alewives make up 90 per cent of the weight of fish in Lake Michigan, and we've been after the conservation commission for 15 years to do something about it," Wenniger said.

Michigan Team New Leader in ABC Tourney

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A Lansing, Mich. squad P.A.C. Advertising, took over the lead in the regular team standings Monday night of the 66th annual American Bowling Congress tournament.

P.A.C. had 3,165 on games of 1,043, 1,095 and 1,117. The big boost was a 711 series by Bruce Sherman.

Ironically, of the 40 Dane County Arena lanes assigned to the tourney, P.A.C. used the same two on which Haefner Auto of St. Louis had rolled 3,125 March 7. Haefner had been the leader until the P.A.C. performance.

London challenges went for naught.

Duane Strong breezed to a victory in the 120-yard high hurdles in 17-seconds, nearly two seconds ahead of his nearest competitor. The huskily built New London hurdler took a spill in the first turn of the low hurdles which was won by teammate Dan Barrington. Strong normally out-distances Barrington in the event.

A dangerous track kept most times down, however, Bob McIlraith turned in a 2:08 half mile — just off his New London school record of 2:04. Ted Feurig took the long jump with a 19-1 leap. Chuck Otis tied for the high jump at 5-4, and Chuck Ostermeier captured the discus with a toss of 128-2.

KAUKAUNA — Fond du Lac exploded for six runs in the top of the first inning and went on to beat Kaukauna, 8-4, in a season-opening baseball game Tuesday afternoon.

The Ghosts' Dave LaBorde was the victim in the first frame, as the Cardinals teed off on him for four hits, including a pair of 2-run doubles by Ken Kraus and Mel Freund.

LaBorde was finally driven from the mound after getting two batters out. He had allowed a pair of walks and hit three batters before being replaced by Tom Nagan. Nagan then went on to finish the game.

Kaukauna came back with a rally of its own in the bottom of the first, scoring all four of its runs to get back in the ball game. Fondy added single runs in the second and sixth innings to wrap up the scoring.

Pound Three Hits
Three hits, three walks, and a pair of Fond du Lac errors brought home Kaukauna's runs. Jack Kempen and Tom Keil each rapped run-scoring singles, and John Pendleton had the other safety in the stanza.

After the first-inning outburst, Kaukauna was held to a lone single by Scott Robach. Brian Felda, who hurled the first five innings, and Steve Heimerl, who finished up, kept the Ghost hitters at bay and posted 10 strikeouts along the way.

Plante Equals Playoff Mark With Shutout

Blues Blank Kings To Grab Lead in Best-of-Seven Set

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jacques Plante, one of hockey's elder statesmen, has a keen memory about goals and goalsies, shutouts and near misses.

It was those memories that set Plante thinking nervously during the last five minutes of the St. Louis Blues' 4-0 victory over the Los Angeles Kings Tuesday night.

The victory gave the Blues a 1-0 lead in the best-of-7 National Hockey League West Division finals. The teams play again Thursday night in St. Louis.

The winner of the series plays the winner of the Montreal-Boston East Division finals. Montreal lead the best-of-7 series 2-0 with the third game in Boston Thursday night.

Trevino Says He Won't Play Masters Again

HOUSTON (AP) — The president of the American Football League says an all-star game with the National League soon may rival the Super Bowl as football's top attraction.

As an anticipated aid to batters, the park's expansiveness has been reduced by new fences. They bring in the foul line from 352 to 335 feet, throw the first base to Ray power alleys from 375 to 370 feet. Both are Hall of Fame and centerfield from 415 to 400 feet.

With good weather, the Sox expect a turnout of 20,000 fans.

Third Straight

Don Buford's third straight single broke a 5-5 tie and Frank Robinson followed with a three-run homer as the Orioles exploded for five runs in the eighth inning.

Frazier Tops NBA's First Defensive '5'

NEW YORK (AP) — Walt Frazier, a second-year guard and the playmaking star of the New York Knicks, today topped the list of the first official All-Defensive National Basketball Association team ever picked by the pro circuit's coaches.

The first team also included another Knick, forward Dave DeBusschere. Player-coach Bill Russell of the Boston Celtics, center Nate Thurmond of San Francisco and Jerry Sloan, Chicago guard.

Chones at Top
McGuire Says MU's Recruiting List Has
But 3 Names to Date

BY RON WITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

"We've only started, but the first three names we have are Jim Chones, Al McGuire and Mel Davis."

The subject was recruiting, and Marquette University basketball coach Al McGuire was talking as he usually does — candidly — after the All-Fox Cities banquet at Darboy Monday night.

"At the most, we can offer four scholarships this year," said the man who guided his team to national prominence the last two seasons.

The three players he named, of course, are on a lot of other coaches lists. Chones and McGuire (Al Jr., his son) are both Wisconsin products, while Davis is a New York City star. "I do all my recruiting in the state or New York City," he declared matter-of-factly.

Praise for Chones

"He's something else," McGuire chuckled about Chones, the 6-11 Racine St. Catherine center who led his team to the state title. "Potentially, he's as good a big man as I've ever seen."

McGuire would like to have his son, 6-4 Al Jr., but has offspring may have other ideas. "He's visited Tulane and North Carolina, and he hasn't made up his mind yet," McGuire said.

About the 6-6 Davis, McGuire probably thought he had said enough when he cited the star as being "on the first-team all-American high school team." He conceded there might be 50 schools after the same boy, but, he said "you give it a run and see what happens."

Better Defense

What's ahead for Marquette next year now that George Thompson is gone?

"It will be like a mental block at first," he conjectured, "because we always looked to him. But we have four starters back. And we'll be better defensively."

Was he surprised that Thompson hadn't been drafted in the first two rounds? "No," he said firmly, then added with assurance: "He'll go in the next round. He's at that height (6-2) where pros don't know what he can do."

One of the Warriors back next season will be John Reider, a former Kimberly guard. "I think he's the only player I've had that really hasn't had a chance to play," McGuire said, somewhat miffed.

"I think he has fabulous ability," McGuire said of Reider, "but it's like playing behind Mickey Mantle." Mickey Mantle, in this case, happens to be Dean Meminger. "He'll probably be first sub for Deano, though," McGuire stated.

Make Great Used Cars

We know the used car market. Only by leasing cars with a high resale value can we stay in business.
Chevrolet, Buick and Cadillac are our favorites. Year after year they trade for higher prices than any other cars in our experience. We'll stick with Chevrolet, Buick and Cadillac. You stick with us. We'll both save money.

To Your Good Health
Pep Pills Dangerous
To Take at Any Time

BY GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M. D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: My boy friend is 29 and is a long-distance truck driver and mover. He is a heavy smoker and also drinks.

He takes these pills, bennies, a pep pill, and I tell him it is bad for his blood and system. Please tell me something about this pill and its after effects, if any. — N.C.

He certainly knows he shouldn't drink and drive.

He probably is just as aware that he shouldn't use "bennies," either, whether driving or not — but especially not when driving.

They are a form of amphetamine, a powerful stimulant, and according to law, should be dispensed only on prescription.

But this law, like so many laws, is violated by people who can't seem to get it through their heads that there is a reason for such laws.

The amphetamines, first of all, do provide some false "pep." Continued use can lead to jitters, nervousness, and ultimately expenditure of so much of a person's energy that he can even collapse.

It's a dangerous practice.

People take bootleg "bennies" to stay awake, often then have to take sedatives in order to sleep. This vicious circle has caused a great deal of human destruction.

But people still do it. They try it once, or twice, or a number of times, and get away with it. But familiarity breeds contempt. Then one day they realize that they have taken too much of these powerful drugs.

Federal officials, not to mention local police, are well aware of the danger. To give you a few instances that are on record, some drivers have taken such overdoses that they began having hallucinations. One driver thought bandits were on the roof of his cab, and went roaring through a town firing a pistol at the "bandits" who didn't exist. He wrecked his truck but fortunately didn't kill anyone. But there have been other horrible wrecks, induced by these drugs, that have killed several in a single accident.

The danger is so great that the authorities even search trucks to find contraband pills.

The principal reason the pills are used by drivers is, of course, to stay awake on long trips. It is a very dangerous thing to do. Getting enough sleep is the only sensible way. In fact, the laws prohibit driving a truck for more than a certain length of time without getting adequate time to rest.

Yet drivers still take these chances, and every so often somebody winds up dead or crippled.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How many drops of iodine should a person take every day in place of iodized salt? — Mrs. J.C.

Don't take any in drop form. It was once calculated that the amount of iodine the body needs is roughly equivalent to the amount a person would get by smelling the cork of an iodine bottle once a day.

In a word, you need only a tiny trace. Too much iodine (and several drops a day could be far too much) may be asking for trouble.

Dear Sir: I am a 12-year-old boy and I like eggs. I eat one for breakfast and one before I go to bed (scrambled). My mother says it is possible to eat too many eggs and that it could be harmful. Is this true? — J.Z.

It is possible to eat too much of almost anything, but I don't think two eggs a day is too much for a growing boy or will harm him in any way.

You can lose weight if you really want to! Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and with no gimmicks — to the level best suited to your

Money Alone Isn't Key to Education, Kellett Panel Told

SPECIAL TO THE POST-CRESCENT
RACINE — Governor Warren P. Knowles today warned against "the popular assumption that money automatically produces education and, therefore, more money can be depended upon to produce more education. Whether or not any of the money produces good education remains largely unexplored territory on our government maps."

The Governor made the statement at the opening of the first of a series of meetings around the state called by William R. Kellett, retired Neenah industrialist and chairman of a newly formed special committee on education. The committee was created by Knowles to "study in depth the state's financial and administrative relationship with education at all levels and recommend appropriate actions to insure that the tremendous investment of tax dollars produces the maximum educational systems. Subsequent meetings will be held in Madison, Neenah, Stevens Point, and Milwaukee.

Nation's Finest

"We have what is unquestionably the nation's finest educational systems — from kindergarten through graduate school," Knowles told the gathering. "The people of our state have recognized its importance and have traditionally invested heavily in education. Wisconsin is America's 16th largest state, it ranks 11th in the number of college students, 11th in funds spent on public education, and 3rd in its per capita support of higher education," he reported.

"In the current fiscal year individual needs. For a copy, write to Dr. Thosteson, care of The Post-Crescent, enclosing 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column wherever possible.

rium, we have used 65 cents of every general revenue dollar for education.

"In the past 10 years, the cost of education has more than tripled. In part, this reflects the population explosion. Equally important though, is the increasingly recognized importance of education and the widespread desire to greater educational opportunity. Wisconsin has responded to these demands," Knowles said, "and today we find that the resources to meet these demands may no longer be able to keep pace."

The chief executive said he asked Kellett "to put together a special committee on education which would dig into this whole subject and come up with some answers. It's a tremendous undertaking — but if it can be done at all, Bill Kellett can do it," Knowles stated.

"I'm sure your are all familiar with the great job he has done on other assignments for our state. The Committee on Improved Expenditure Management which he led in 1965 put all of our major state agencies under a microscope and discovered more than a hundred significant management and administrative changes that were necessary to improve their operations."

"The Kellett Task Force on State Government Reorganization developed the plan for the functional realignment of our state agencies, significantly reducing the number and improving their operation."

"Now he has accepted the biggest challenge of all — a thorough examination of all aspects and education in Wisconsin. The success of his mission will have a significant impact of every citizen of Wisconsin now, and in the years ahead," Knowles concluded.

FORD MAVERICK $1995*

(You don't have to read it all—but it's nice to know it's all there.)

Most new cars look like other cars. But when the word gets out that something really different is on the way, rumors run wild. Few cars have caused as much talk as Maverick. Ford's new entry in the small car field rivals the economy imports in price . . . but tops them in power, performance, passenger room and luggage capacity. We've been bombarded with questions about Maverick. Now, for the first time, here are the answers.

Q. Why did you build the Maverick?
A. We think of Maverick as another one of Ford Motor Company's answers to the gold drain. Now Americans who want small car economy don't have to send their U.S. dollars overseas.

Q. Why did you call it Maverick?
A. You know what a maverick is. A maverick breaks the rules. A maverick is different. Maverick plugs the big gap between the compacts and the imports. It has a wheelbase eight inches shorter than a '69 Falcon, eight and one-half inches longer than a VW 1500. Nothing else like it.

Q. Why did you make it this size?
A. Maverick pinches pennies, not people. We gave Maverick more leg room. More shoulder room. More luggage room. Good example: the front seat of a Maverick offers you nine inches more shoulder room than the front seat of the leading economy import and its trunk can handle all the luggage for a family of four, including a set of golf clubs.

Q. What do I get for the price?
A. You get your money's worth. A complete, built-for-Americans kind of car. Room. Hot styling. Color-keyed interiors. Even the heater is included. Some economy car interiors are about as luxurious as a park bench. Not Maverick's. You get plush seats. Cloth and vinyl upholstery with unique tartan plaid cloth inserts. You also get safety features like smart pull-out door handles. Strong safety door locks. Two-speed electric wipers. Safety belts. Head restraints. Plus conveniences like armrests, coat hooks, lighted heater controls. Important little things that add so much to your driving comfort.

Q. What about options?
A. You can get 'em if you want 'em. You can order integral air conditioning. (It's built in, not hung on.) Other options include 3-speed automatic or low cost semiautomatic transmission, and a hefty 200 CID Six. But lots of people won't put an extra cent into this car. Because it's all there. A complete car all ready to drive home.

Q. What kind of gas mileage can I get?
A. That depends on you as well as the car. You can get as much as 25 or 26 miles per gallon—if you have an educated toe and the right road conditions. If you have a lead foot, or do a lot of city driving, you will get a lot less. In tests by professional drivers at our tracks, where we do our best to duplicate actual driving conditions, Maverick averaged 22.5 mpg.

Q. What kind of power does Maverick have?
A. Maverick's Six lets loose 105 galloping horses. That's 52 more than you get in the 4-cylinder VW 1500. Maverick can cover 417 feet in ten seconds from a standing start. That means you can get up to highway speed in a hurry. When you enter a 70 mph turnpike, you won't feel like a retired bookkeeper thrust into the middle of a pro football game.

Q. If it has an eight inch longer wheelbase than the leading import, does it still handle and park easily?
A. Maverick can U-turn in a tighter circle (35.6 feet) than the leading economy import (36.0 feet). Maverick can slant through traffic like a halfback. It can turn on a dime and give you nine cents change. If you've been driving any other American car, you'll find Maverick's neat size adds up to 5½ feet to any parking space.

Q. Can Detroit really build a small economy car that's tough and long lasting?
A. It's not easy, but we did it. Maverick's unitized body construction makes it light, strong and durable. It's welded like a battleship. Rustproofing compound goes into deep crevices that never see the light of day. Then all that strength is covered with four coats of paint for lasting beauty. Result: one tough little car that's put together to stay together. (The service schedule in the Maverick owner's manual goes up to 108,000 miles or nine years—that ought to tell you something about its rugged durability.)

Q. How about parts and service?
A. Maverick is designed to be unusually easy to service. You're dealing with made-in-America parts and 6,000 easy-to-find Ford Dealers. Fast repairs and easy replacements mean extra savings in both time and money.

Q. Is Maverick really easier and less expensive to maintain than an economy import?
A. Definitely. Maverick oil changes come only every 6,000 miles and chassis lubrication once every 36,000 miles. The leading economy import recommends oil changes every 3,000 miles (twice as often as Maverick) and chassis lubrication every 6,000 miles (six times as often as Maverick). Those are just a few examples of the many ways Maverick lessens inconvenience and lowers operating cost.

Q. Can I do my own maintenance work?
A. Yes, if you have an average amount of mechanical ability. The Maverick owner's manual contains 24 pages of detailed diagrams and easy-to-follow instructions for routine maintenance jobs you can do yourself, if you wish. You'll find it easy to change spark plugs, replace ignition points . . . plus many other do-it-yourself repairs and replacements.

Q. Can a small car be safe? And how safe is safe?
A. This small car incorporates the latest advances in engineering. Maverick's brakes are as big as a standard compact's—designed to stop cars weighing hundreds of pounds more. Maverick gives you weight, power, stability. Designed for American driving conditions.

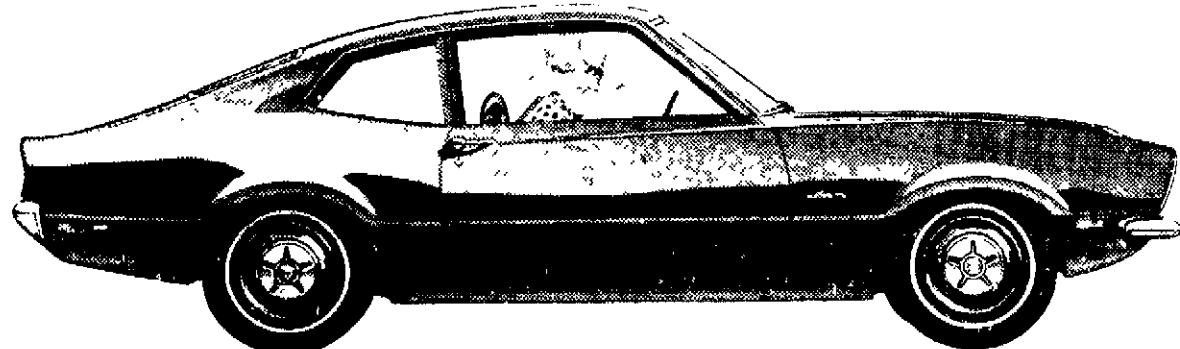

Q. How does Maverick ride?
A. Here's where Maverick's longer, wider stance really pays off. You get a smoother, quieter ride. Maverick's tight, strong, unitized body helps eliminate squeaks and rattles. Special insulation blocks out road noise. The people who brought you a Ford that was quieter than a Rolls-Royce now bring you a small car that doesn't sound like a power mower.

Q. Is there an advantage in the fact that Maverick is really a 1970 car?
A. Slower depreciation is one money-in-the-pocket advantage. Maverick's 1970 model designation means it keeps its trade-in value higher. Longer. (Maverick is built to be a good investment from the minute you buy it to the minute you sell it.)

Better come take a look at this one. You'll find it where the action is—right in there with other great Ford values like specially equipped Ford Galaxia 500's, Fairlanes, Mustangs and Falcons.

You'll find them at your Ford Dealer's—the place you've got to go to see what's going on.

For an authentic 1/25 scale model of the new Ford Maverick, send $1.00 to Maverick, P.O. Box 5397, Department N-50, Detroit, Michigan 48211. (Offer ends July 31, 1969.)

*Manufacturer's suggested retail price for the car. Price does not include: white sidewall tires, $32.00; dealer preparation charge, if any; transportation charges, state and local taxes.

U.S. Admits Spy Craft 'Probably' Shot Down

President Nixon Studies Response

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon said today all available evidence supports the North Korean claim it shot down a huge U.S. Navy reconnaissance plane over the Sea of Japan. There apparently were no survivors, it added.

An earlier statement reported a Soviet ship, assisting in the massive sea and air search for the EC121, had recovered what it described as airplane parts, but none of the 31 crewmen, in the sea 120 miles off the North Korean coast.

"All evidence now available to us, including North Korean claims and debris sightings, leads us to believe that the aircraft was shot down by North Korean aircraft," the later statement said.

Read by Pentagon spokesman Daniel Z. Henkin, it offered no details on how the plane was destroyed, whether by aircraft cannon fire or plane-launched missiles.

The 3 1/2-page statement also avoided any discussion of political or diplomatic ramifications. It was read as President Nixon was meeting with the National Security Council.

North Korean radio broadcasts monitored in Tokyo said the intelligence-gathering plane intruded into North Korean airspace. The Pentagon denied it, saying the plane had been ordered to get no closer than 50 nautical miles to North Korea which claims 12-mile territorial waters.

Henkin said the flight, and others like it, was approved by "high government authorities in the State and Defense Departments, the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the White House."

In its later statement, it amplified its contention the plane never entered North Korean airspace saying: "From a variety of sources, some of them sensitive, we are able to confirm that at all times during its mission the aircraft was far outside any claimed territorial air space of North Korea."

The Japanese Defense Agency said earlier today an American military radar in South Korea spotted a falling U.S. plane after it made contact with intercepting North Korean fighters.

The report said the plane was seen contacting the North Korean plane over the Sea of Japan about 150 miles southeast of Chongjin, a North Korean port. Pentagon sources said the four-propeller, unarmed aircraft flying out of Atsugi, Japan, was monitoring North Korean radio messages and studying radar stations in its air defenses. Henkin called it a routine reconnaissance mission.

"Reconnaissance missions of this type have been flown for more than 20 years in the Sea of Japan," he said. "There was nothing unusual about this mission." But he gave no detail.

Henkin maintained the plane's mission was "a lawful use of international air space."

Henkin said the 300 m.p.h. craft, too slow to escape the supersonic MIG aircraft possessed

'One Shot'

HONG KONG (AP) — North Vietnam's official radio today congratulated the North Korean air force on "its glorious achievement in shooting down with only one shot a marauding U.S. spy plane that intruded North Korean air space."

Radio Hanoi said loss of the plane with 31 Americans aboard "shows that the U.S. aggressors learned nothing from the loss of the Pueblo," the American intelligence ship captured off the coast of North Korea 15 months ago.

"After the Pueblo," Radio Hanoi said, "former President

Johnson promised that the United States would not again send spies against the Peoples Republic of North Korea.

"But American aggressors violated their promise and now they have paid the price of 31 of their men."

The broadcast said the loss of the "very big and very sophisticated spy plane to a vigilant unit of the North Korean air force is proof that the United States cannot continue to ignore the repeated warnings of the People's Republic of Korea that it is capable and will defend its territory against American Aggressors."

Bergstrom Says It's Ready To be Annexed to Neenah

BY PETER GENIESSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

NEENAH — A 350-acre parcel, containing the converting divisions and main office buildings of Bergstrom Paper Co., valued well in excess of $4 million, will be annexed to the city of Neenah.

Bergstrom officials announced today that the firm intends to file a petition for annexation of its Town of Neenah properties, located along U.S. 41, southwest of Neenah.

City officials who had eyed the industrial acreage for years, were elated at the announcement. Town of Neenah Chairman Laurel Heaney declined to comment, saying he first wanted to speak to Bergstrom officials.

Bergstrom President H. R. Moore, in his announcement, also suggested the entire Town of Neenah be brought into the city.

"This is the best thing that could possibly happen to the city of Neenah," Mayor Donald Hassler remarked.

"Not only will the city realize the additional tax base and revenues from the present Bergstrom properties, but it should also open up opportunities for other development in that area," Hassler said.

Bergstrom started its complex along U.S. 41 in 1947 with the construction of a warehouse. When the firm's downtown Neenah plant became inadequate to handle production needs, the converting division and main office were moved to the Town of Neenah location.

The original tract contained more than 400 acres. Menasha Corporation moved its headquarters to an adjoining site about four years ago and a smaller parcel was sold to Mid-America Tag and Label Corporation. The city of Neenah recently annexed the Mid-America property.

An executive of Menasha Corp., which operates a sizable corrugated carton plant, declined to comment on the Bergstrom announcement. He said Wayne Bryan, Neenah public works director, had discussed possible annexation with company officials several weeks ago and understood the Menasha Corp. position.

Bryan recalled this morning that officials of the firm had described the possible annexation as "a question of dollars," and would annex "when they could afford it."

He recalled giving a report recently to the city's public works committee that said, in effect, that both Menasha Corp. and Bergstrom believed "annexation might some day come to pass but they did not believe it was particularly imminent."

Based on that belief, Bryan said today he was "very surprised" that Bergstrom has made its decision so soon.

Bryan said he would not have expected it "for a couple of months yet," or longer.

Moore said today, "We have long recognized that Neenah is a fast growing community. Our long-range planning envisioned movement by the city to a point where it would be on our doorstep," he said.

Moore added, "Continued growth and development of our site will require municipal services for water, sewer, police and fire protection."

"Recent enactment of the so-called shoreline zoning ordinance, encompassing water contiguous lands outside of municipal boundaries into restricted uses, now inhibits our land use in the Township of Neenah," Moore stated.

Long zoned by Winnebago County as a heavy industry site, the shoreline ordinance implementation declared our property on either side of the Neenah slough to be a game habitat. This restrictive action is manifestly at variance with industrial development of our investment," he added.

"It also created an undue hardship on our growth potential as well as the economic development of our community."

Moore stated, "In our opinion, the best interests of our community's development would be served by incorporation of the whole Town of Neenah into the City of Neenah by consolidation under the provision of Wisconsin's statutes at section 66.02, by referendum."

Cambodia, U.S. To Resume Ties

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia free countries in the world and (AP) — Cambodia's chief of state said today he would resume diplomatic relations with the United States now that the U.S. government has recognized Cambodia's frontiers.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk said charges d'affaires would be exchanged, a step short of exchanging ambassadors again.

"We thank the United States, President Nixon and the great American people for this gesture of equity and justice toward Cambodia," said the prince.

Sihanouk hedged this with an expression of hope that American maps soon would show disputed islands off the Cambodia coast as part of Cambodia and not Vietnam. "This is my only reservation for the future," he said, adding if this "rank error" persists, it would remove all value from the statement recognizing Cambodia's frontiers.

The Saigon government swung into line with its allies in Washington. The South Vietnamese said they were "ready to reconsider" their frontier problems with Cambodia, their neighbor on South Vietnam's southwest.

A communique from the South Vietnamese Foreign Ministry lauded the statement last Saturday in which the U.S. government said it recognized "the sovereignty, independence, neutrality and territorial integrity of the kingdom of Cambodia within its present frontiers."

The South Vietnamese statement did not go this far but said Saigon "is ready to reconsider the problem concerning the two countries and welcomes any suggestion suitable to the two countries' interest."

"The Republic of Vietnam," it continued, "advocates establishing diplomatic relations with Cambodia."

"We want to remain friends with China, North Vietnam, and the National Liberation Front," he said. "We remain anti-imperialist and we will always support the four points of Hanoi and the five points of the NLF."

These are the terms of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front for ending the war in Vietnam.

The prince announced the Cambodian Embassy in Laos is being closed, but the diplomatic relations are not being broken. He said Laos had not recognized Cambodia's frontiers.

"If the Laotians want to take from us the providence of Stung Treng, it is war," he said.

She testified that these facts "are made even more shocking and more tragic by the fact that thousands upon thousands of our older citizens, barely subsisting on meager monthly stipends, go without adequate food tends to help these poor people feed themselves is a failure to growing weak and ill and, in too many of them."

Prague Students Join Strike To Protest New Restrictions

PRAGUE (AP) — Agricultural students boycotted classes today to protest renewed censorship, official interference in sport and "strengthening of Soviet military forces in Czechoslovakia."

A strike proclamation also protested "the demonstration of military strength before an important party session." The strike was scheduled to run through Thursday, when the 190-member central committee of the Communist Party holds a crisis session.

The proclamation was posted briefly in Prague's central Wenceslas Square, but a policeman tore it down. Scores of passers-by read the statement and one man penciled a line under the demand in it for an election, postponed by the Soviet invasion last August.

No classes were meeting at the modernistic agricultural college outside Prague. About 300 students were printing posters and leaflets or holding meetings.

The strikers said they wanted "to prove to ourselves and the public that we are not yet morally dead."

Czechoslovak authorities announced last weekend an increase of the Soviet occupation forces but later canceled the announcement because of what they called "changed circumstances."

Today's strike proclamation, however, could also be referring to reports of troop movements never officially confirmed.

A week of Warsaw Pact ground maneuvers was held shortly after the outbreak of the Czechoslovak political crisis and three days of Warsaw Pact air defense exercises were scheduled to end today.

Interference in sports referred to the Communist Party's so far unsuccessful attempt to persuade Czechoslovakia to participate in the annual bicycle "peace race," normally held between Warsaw, East Berlin and Prague.

Despite the strike statement by the agricultural college, the students did not appear to be planning street demonstrations. An unofficial warning was circulated earlier this month that demonstrations would be curbed by gunfire and tanks if necessary.

The Czech Council of Trade Unions issued a strong complaint today that all Czechoslovakians are being blamed for the March 28-29 anti-Soviet demonstrations.

"We cannot regard it as just that the consequences of acts by those who violated our laws should hit adversely the entire society and limit its basic rights," declared a council statement published in the labor newspaper Prace.

Tornado Kills At Least 1,000

Pakistani Workers Go Through Rubble Looking for More

DACCA, East Pakistan (AP) — The stench of death hung over villages on the outskirts of Dacca today as rescue workers dug out more bodies and the estimated death toll in Monday's killer tornado rose to 1,000.

More than 500 persons were killed in the industrial suburb of Demra alone.

Hospitals sent out an urgent appeal for blood donors. Doctors and nurses struggled to cope with a continuous flood of thousands of injured.

Students of Dacca University went into the countryside in trucks and helped troops bring back piles of bodies wrapped in white sheets.

The tornado scythed in late Monday afternoon from the Bay of Bengal and just missed Dacca, the capital of East Pakistan and a city famous for its many ancient mosques. The twister first hit Demra, then roared on into the countryside, leaving a trail of destruction through 30 villages.

Water Shortage

Electric power flickered on and off last night as engineers tried to cope with damaged power lines. There was a severe shortage of drinking water in many areas. Fifteen relief camps were opened in hardest hit districts to supply food, medicine and cash. President Agha Yahya Khan ordered a million rupees—$218,000—made available for relief work.

"It was doomsday," said a worker in a Demra textile mill, Abdul Farah. "We thought there was no escape from it."

"With some other workers I sought safety in the staff quarters at our mill. But even the concrete roof of this building was blown off in the wind. When the tornado had passed we came out and saw people lying dead all over the place."

The Army will roll up four field kitchens, as it did in 1966, to feed the "refugees" doughnuts.

Poems of the earthquake will be read by two newspapermen; a government expert will speak on the impossibility of predicting earthquakes; vintage music will come from the brass of Turk Murphy's Band.

Californians Go Along With Gag

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Doomsday prophets or no doomsday prophets, San Francisco will observe Friday the 63rd anniversary of one of history's worst earthquakes.

The seers are invited, but it is reported they are pretty far off, waiting for California to slide into the Pacific.

They'll wait a long time, said Mayor Joseph Alioto. Going along with what he hoped was a gag, he announced

Fire Sweeps Into House Near Brillion

Lawrence Miller Farm Dwelling Extensively Burned

BRILLION — The 60-year-old farm home of Lawrence Miller, three and one-half miles northeast of here, was extensively damaged by a fire that leveled a wood shed located 15 feet from the house.

The blaze, of undetermined origin, was discovered in the 16 by 11 foot shed about 8:45 a.m. Tuesday by Miller's son, Eugene.

The fire leveled the shed and its piled log contents and quickly spread to the house. The fire traveled into the attic of the 12-room structure and was difficult to extinguish because of the tin roof, according to Brillion Fire Chief Oscar Beilke. Sr. Beilke subsequently called on the Reedsville Fire Department for aid.

Firemen stayed at the scene until 1 p.m. and prevented the fire from spreading to a barn and other nearby buildings.

According to Miller and his son, who occupied the house, all personal belongings were removed before the fire completely burned out the upstairs and caused damage to the ground floor rooms.

The shed in which the fire started was not electrically wired. No estimate of the loss has been made.

Waupaca Board Discusses Formation of Court Branch

WAUPACA—The new second branch of the County Court, scheduled to open on July 1, took more definitive form Tuesday as Judge-elect Nathan E. Wiese met with the county board and the jurisdiction of the court was explained.

Supervisors were especially concerned about the courtroom facilities planned by the judiciary committee and what the new court was going to cost the county.

When Supv. Ray Hemingson, chairman of the judiciary committee, explained that the county board room would become the new courtroom and that the adjoining committee room would become the judge's chambers at a cost of $10,600 for the first six months operation — questions were raised about the courtroom built into the county jail.

Plan Criticized
Dist. Atty. Richard E. Johnson reiterated to the board that

Waupaca Close to Teacher Pact

WAUPACA — The salary negotiating team for the Waupaca Joint School District advised the board of education Tuesday it is within $200 of agreeing on beginning salaries for 1969-70 contracts.

Laurie Anderson and Otto Rusch, bargaining for the board, advised that "terms have nearly been reached" calling for $6,600 base salaries for beginning teachers and including four per cent increments for longevity. The teachers are requesting base annual salaries of $6,800.

Annual salary levels of $13,500 for high school principal Clarence Riddle and elementary principal William B. Williams have been approved. Supt. George Hendrickson will receive $15,500 next year.

A committee was named to formulate procedures for hiring a new administrator.

holding court in the county jail would be unrealistic, if not illegal, and that it could mean a loss of 80 per cent of the effectiveness of the second branch.

"It would be totally impossible to hold the second branch of County Court at the county jail building," Johnson said. "I express the view of Judge Wendell McHenry when I say this. The county bar association is totally in agreement that there is no workable way to have the second branch of the County Court held outside the courthouse."

"The duties of the two county judges will be decided soon but lines of authority being considered now will be for Judge McHenry to handle all probate matters and felony cases and Judge Wiese to handle all traffic matters, juvenile cases and small claims," the district attorney continued.

Court Established
Stating that the decision to establish the second County Court was out of the hands of the county board Johnson went on record saying that since the court had been established and Wiese elected, "it is deserving of a fair chance to make it work. We are going to do everything we can to make the court work."

Hemingson told the supervisors that it will be necessary to hire a deputy clerk and a clerk-stenographer, at the annual salaries of $4,140 and $3,120, respectively. One-half of their salaries are included in the $10,600 court cost figures for 1969.

"The county will pay no part of its share of the judge's annual salary of $17,500 or the court reporter's salary, which was not disclosed, this year. Waupaca County will be billed for half of both salaries for the six months of this year and half of the 1970 salaries," he explained.

Revenue Viewed

year's 2,466 cases, which brought in $15,800. For every plea of guilty or forfeiture, a defendant is charged $5. In cases of county ordinance violations, the county keeps 100 per cent of the fine, state traffic violations 50 per cent of the fines and conservation violations 10 per cent of the fine.

Judge-elect Wiese addressed the board briefly, saying that the second court's calendar "will have to be played by ear at the start." He pointed out that there is a considerable volume of traffic cases in Waupaca County, twice as many as some adjoining counties.

"If there is some special way we can be of more benefit to the people of this county, I will appreciate your advisement in the matter," he said.

Supervisors Pick Veterans Service Officer

CHILTON — The Calumet County Board of Supervisors, on recommendation of the salary and personnel committee, selected Sylvester Burg, a former resident of Charlesburg, to fill the Veterans Service Office job that was held by the late Alfred N. Hertel for the past 22 years.

Burg is 50 and recently retired after 26 years in the Army. He was active in various branches of the service.

Burg was with the training center supply office and was adviser for the United States Army Reserve in Appleton from August, 1956, to October, 1958. He received a commendation medal for outstanding services when he left Appleton. While at Appleton, he was responsible for requesting, receiving and issuing all supplies and equipment from uniforms to tanks and ammunition.

Burg's mother, Mrs. Freda Burg, makes her home at Charlesburg. Burg was one of five men out of 12 qualified for the post.

Supervisors Taking Apart 'Power Structure' of Board

Separate Executive, Finance Functions

A move to establish a standing committee of the whole session for a lengthy discussion. One supporter, Supt. Eugene Kloes, Appleton, said the county has an $8 million budget which was approved Tuesday at the opening session of the board's annual April reorganization meeting.

The vote was 37-10. The measure was part of a reorganization resolution introduced by 10 supervisors to create a fulltime finance committee and, as one support put it, "dismantle the power structure."

The measure takes much budget responsibility from under the thumb of the executive committee, which this past year, named the finance subcommittee that deliberated on the requests.

Named to the new committee were Supvs. Marvin Babbitt, Seymour, board vice chairman; Russell DeLaHunt, Kaukauna; Harold Miller, Appleton; Herbert Heible, Appleton, and Sylvester Lenz, Kimberly.

In a sharp debate filled with motions, amended motions and confusion expressed by several supervisors, the county board, also agreed to establish the finance committee as a 10th standing committee, instead of merging two to keep the number of nine the original resolution had urged. The original resolution had suggested merging agriculture and institutions committees to free some supervisors to serve on the new finance committee.

The county board went into a are sent to the executive committee for action.

Kloes contended there is inadequate time spent by the subcommittee on critical budget matters.

The resolution drew a sharp attack from Supv. Marvin Babbitt, Seymour, who charged "you fellas have not brought out the underlying reason for bringing out this resolution."

He said the resolution was aimed at eliminating the executive committee.

Another resolution supporter, Supv. Charles Wussow, Appleton, refuted Babbitt's remarks.

He noted the executive committee meets only a half a day per month at the call of the board chairman, whom, he noted, doesn't call meetings more often.

Wussow and Kloes pointed to what they called financial confusion on airport projects as an example of the need for an active standing finance committee.

Wussow said the "lack of analysis" of airport funding and available federal funds has created problems.

Supv. Paul Kostka, Little Chute, defended the airport committee of which he is a member, and said "we got all the state and federal aids possible."

Clerk Arthur Hoolihan read the resolution, a six-page document incorporating three basic proposals:

—Establishing a five-man standing finance committee.

—Merging two other county board committees.

—Establishing new committee assignments for the corporation counsel and executive secretary.

Finance Secretary
The resolution would take the executive secretary from the executive committee and make him finance secretary of the finance committee.

The corporation counsel would become the secretary of the executive committee.

Supv. Joseph DeBruin, Buchanan town chairman, charged this proposal would "make an office boy out of our executive secretary and make an office girl out of your corporation counsel."

Disposal Problem Panel Considered By Calumet Board

CHILTON — Selection of a county five member committee to work with the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Committee in setting up and studying the solid waste disposal rules will be taken into consideration by C. J. Hipke, the Calumet County Board chairman.

The recommendation to have a five-member committee, two from the county board and three citizen members, was made to the board by the planning and zoning committee.

Roland Tonn, Calumet County planner, indicated that when a Milwaukee firm wished to locate a sanitary land fill in the Town of Charlestown, it met with great opposition. This committee will study the problem and relay the information back to their communities.

"This disposal problem is something we are going to have to face," stated Tonn. "The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) will be putting pressure on us by the summer of 1971 to comply with these disposal rules."

Involve Major Cities
It is hoped that this committee would involve the three major cities of Chilton, Brillion and New Holstein, and possibly Hilbert. Members would attempt to explain to their communities what would be done and help to "soften the blow."

"There are bound to be hard feelings," Tonn stated. He feels that if the organizations that strongly opposed the Town of Charlestown operation were better informed of the disposal problems, they would meet the problem easier.

Two county board members were named to the newly formed Calumet County Civil Defense and Disaster Control Committee by Hipke. Serving with Hipke will be Julius Schmidt and Leroy Kleist. This committee was formerly under the protection of persons and property committee, and now must be separated under Wisconsin statutes.

Highway Committee
Elected to the highway committee were Eldred Hedrich, chairman, George Schwalbach and Arno Krupp.

Also elected by the supervisors was the agriculture and extension education committee with Oscar Kossman, chairman, and Clem Ecker, Mike Kloeppel, Ed. A. Rusch and Hipke.

Donald Schwobe, chief zoning administrator, recommended that the Town of Charlestown building inspector be the new town chairman, Clarence Zar-

Six Years of Efforts in the Institute of Paper Chemistry's Genetics and Physiology group has paid off in the production and growth of a tree from the tissue culture process. Three of five such trees "created" during the past year are still surviving with this tree and two others now approaching three feet in height. The "test tube tree" is the project of Dr. Lawson Winton of the genetics and physiology group. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Institute of Paper Chemistry

'A Tree Grows in a Test Tube'

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent Staff Committee

A "test tube tree" has been produced and grown by Institute of Paper Chemistry scientists, the first time a complete tree has been produced by the tissue culture process.

While Institute scientists disclaim "super forests" are in the near future, the development means that a method has been found to eliminate the need for sexual propagation.

Three of five such trees "created" during the past year are still surviving with two of the three approaching three feet in height. The third is the newest tree and is about to be transplanted into soil.

6 Years' Work
The breakthrough in tissue culture development is the result of six years of work by Dr. Lawson Winton, a member of the Institute's Genetics and Physiology group, which is headed by Dr. Dean W. Einspahr.

The project at the Institute involves a form of Quaking Aspen tree called a "triploid" Aspen, appears only rarely in nature. However, Dr. Winton and Dr. Einspahr say the tissue culture process is adaptable to any species of tree.

The triploid Aspen differs from the regular Quaking Aspen in that it has three sets of chromosomes per cell instead of two.

The Aspen was chosen because of its rapid growth characteristics and its ability to form new shoots after it has been harvested.

Short Fibers
Aspens, which have short fibers, are used primarily by the pulp industry in coarser grades of paper and in corrugated materials. The triploid Aspen has longer fibers and produces a better pulp. This form of the Aspen was first discovered in Sweden in the 1930s, and in this country in 1954.

The triploid aspen will grow to pulp size about 25 per cent faster than other aspens. It could be harvested after about 10 to 12 years, or at the grower's prerogative, harvesting could be delayed.

In addition when cut down, aspens roots do not die but send up new shoots, eliminating the need for replanting.

Dr. Winton explained that to produce a new tree, a stem segment is placed in a solution containing growth hormones which stimulate the growth of a layer of cells which exist under the stem's bark.

Like a Cauliflower
These cells, containing only characteristics of the tree from which the stem was taken keep multiplying, like cancer, and form a mass on the end of the stem similar in appearance to a cauliflower head. This "callus" is removed from the stem and is then placed in another nutrient solution which tells the callus to start growing shoots and roots.

Dr. Winton said previous experiments have been able to produce both shoots and roots, but the two have never been connected. Now in an average of one per cent of the cultures, the shoot and root are connected.

Trees produced by the tissue culture process have a genetic makeup identical to that of the tree from which the stem section was taken. Since the callus which grew at the end of the stem can be subdivided and forced to continue reproducing itself indefinitely, an infinite number of trees could be produced, each one genetically identical.

Dr. Einspahr said the process, through further research, may result in producing new trees from single cells.

Once this level is attained, it would then apparently be possible to determine the effects of various nutrients on the cell and single out which nutrient produces a higher cellulose content. This would bring an obvious advantage to the pulp and paper industry which uses the cellulose in paper production.

While research has been directed toward pulp producing

The shoot and root are then returned to a balanced growth nutrient for development until they can be transplanted to soil.

In nature, a tree must grow to flowering size before it can pollinate or be cross bred, a period usually of at least 10 years. Research now is aimed at causing the callus to flower to permit cross breeding after about a year.

Genetically Identical
Trees produced by the tissue culture process have a genetic makeup identical to that of the tree from which the stem section was taken. Since the callus which grew at the end of the stem can be subdivided and forced to continue reproducing itself indefinitely, an infinite number of trees could be produced, each one genetically identical.

Dr. Einspahr said the process, through further research, may result in producing new trees from single cells.

Once this level is attained, it would then apparently be possible to determine the effects of various nutrients on the cell and single out which nutrient produces a higher cellulose content. This would bring an obvious advantage to the pulp and paper industry which uses the cellulose in paper production.

While research has been directed toward pulp producing trees, Dr. Einspahr said the theory of the process could be directed toward producing better trees for almost any purpose.

middle dish shows growth of roots and shoots, followed by development of a complete plantlet in lower right dish. The plantlet is cut from the callus and planted in soil.

Classroom for Low Achievers Gets Approval

New London Board OK's Self-Contained Program for 1969-70

NEW LONDON — A self-contained classroom for "low achievement" students in the senior high school was backed Monday by the board of education.

The administration was instructed to continue with steps toward establishing the program for these students during the 1969-70 school year. Supt. H. James Ramsdell pointed out that the program would be voluntary.

"It is not for students of low ability, but with low achievement," Ramsdell said. The school's guidance department will interview students and have consultations with parents before students enter the program.

The program will be based on the principles of the "one-room" classroom, where students were exposed to a variety of subjects taught by a single teacher. Students from all three classes of the senior high school will be involved.

Oppose Aide

In other business the board indicated it was not in favor of a "health aide" in place of nursing supervision.

Ramsdell said there is a real need for a school nurse. Services have been furnished by the Waupaca County Nurse's office this year and previously by a city-school nurse.

The board is to investigate other alternatives for nursing service with the State Board of Health, including the possibility of hiring a nurse who has not been qualified as a public health nurse.

The board declined to avail itself of Cooperative Educational Service Agency 8 Title III vision screening services.

Reject CESA

Board members felt the district use of volunteer screening and referring any students with sight problems back to their parents was the extent of the school authority. Further action would be an infringement on parental responsibility, they agreed.

Purchase of Vogel-Peterson room dividers and storage cabinets for $2,802 in place of Ebc units for $2,035 was approved. The new units to be used in the multi-classroom area of the Parkview Elementary School as dividers.

The administration was given authority to seek quotations on a one-half ton pickup truck and to purchase the lowest priced vehicle.

Mrs. Howard Wienandt was approved to head the census for the 1969-70 school year. State law requires an annual school census to be taken.

Floral Centerpieces like the one being arranged here by Mrs. Larry Pagel will grace the tables at North Shore Country Club for the 4th annual Brillion American Field Service (AFS) Charity Ball, April 19. Norbert O'Connor, general chairman for the semi-formal dance, smiles approval. The dance is the sole fundraising event of the Brillion chapter and benefits the students here and the American Abroad phase of the program. (Coenen Photo)

Homestead Given $101,300

CHILTON — The building fund of the Calumet Homestead, Inc. of New Holstein is $101,300, someone to make the necessary repairs.

Schuch reported that a study is presently under way by the State Department of Health and Social Services as to the needs of the county. This will assist the committee in preparing for the expansion of the homestead.

This plan would take into consideration all health services, size and type of facilities needed.

Schuch advised starting with planning since it will be a while before actual building can be started. "We can build the building, but the big problem is to staff it," he added.

The supervisors, on motion of Supv. Eldred Hedrich, Chilton, with the State Highway Commission in acquiring the necessary right-of-way between New Holstein and Kiel.

Highway Funds

In other board action, a resolution was passed advancing state highway funds of $280,000 for the improvement of State 57 between Kiel and New Holstein.

Hedrich, chairman of the highway committee, told supervisors that plans for the new highway originally called for four lanes, but with the proposed interstate system in the offing, the highway will be re-planning since it will be a while before actual building can be started.

"We can build the building, but the big problem is to staff it," he added.

County Board Elects Three to Executive Unit

Supervisors Retain Seven on Committee At Reorganization

Three new members were elected Tuesday to the Outagamie County Board 11-man executive committee. Seven men were retained on the county's most powerful committee, and one more will be named.

New members elected at the board's Tuesday afternoon reorganization session were Edward Spierings, Little Chute, of the airport committee; Mrs. Barbara A. Steger, Appleton, of health, education and institutions committee; and John Schreiter, Appleton, of courts, justice and enforcement committee.

Each standing committee is represented by one member on the executive committee, along with County Board Chairman Sylvester Esler, who presides, and Vice Chairman Marvin Babbitt. Seymour Babbitt also is a member of the new standing finance committee.

Re-elected to the executive committee were Supvs. Norman Helms, Seymour, agriculture and conservation committee; G. Arpin Calls for Restraint In Court's Use of Powers

NEENAH-MENASHA — Federal and state courts should use legislative powers "with restraint" and should use these powers only when they are clearly warranted, Edmund P. Arpin, circuit court judge, said Tuesday.

Addressing the breakfast meeting of the Neenah-Menasha Chamber of Commerce, the newly-elected judge said the roles of courts have changed during the past 10 years.

Separation of powers, where the legislative branch makes the law, the executive enforces and administers the law, and the judicial decides individual cases as they arise, doesn't necessarily hold the line anymore, Judge Arpin said.

In the past years, the courts have stepped in when the legislature by some reason or another has not acted. Judge Arpin pointed to a case where the judicial branch ruled that all schools should be desegregated.

This arose out of one case where a state legislature did not act to desegregate the schools and the supreme court, in effect, amended the constitution.

When the Supreme Court does step in to make a decision on a legislative matter, that decision cannot be reversed by the state, he pointed out.

Judge Arpin also commented that the judges' rulings on cases do not today always follow the traditional method of going along with past court decisions, but instead take into consideration the social, economic and moral aspects of the case.

This new trend has in some instances meant the sacrifice of certainty and stability of old laws, Judge Arpin said.

State Bill to Preserve Wolf Set for Action

Measure Provides Temporary Funds for River's Protection

MADISON — The Senate Conservation Committee met in executive session this morning to consider a bill that would temporarily provide funds to preserve scenic areas of the Wolf River.

Sen. Clifford Krueger, R-Merrill, chairman of the committee, said this morning he "saw no problem" with approval of the bill by the committee.

The bill, which provides state funds for the interim period until Congress appropriates funds under the federal Wild Rivers Act, was scheduled for a hearing before the Senate committee Tuesday, but action was postponed until today.

It calls for three years of state appropriations to maintain the scenic areas. After that it is presumed that federal funds will be available.

The federal Wild Rivers Act was passed in September, 1968. It aims specifically at prevention of commercial and industrial exploitation of the Wolf and several other Wisconsin streams.

A large section of the Wolf in Langlade County would be protected under the bill. In all 24 miles of Wolf frontage are expected to receive protection.

About $17 million in federal land acquisition is expected under the measure.

Request for Investigator Delayed

Waupaca Sheriff Reveals Plans To Resign to County Supervisors

WAUPACA — Sheriff William Mork made his second request Tuesday for a special investigator in his department and found himself in a county board "hornets nest" concerning his own status as sheriff.

After direct questions from board members, Mork revealed that he does plan to resign from office July 1. Although he pointed out that this was not as yet official, he added there is no doubt about his pending resignation.

Mork proposed that a full-time investigator with the rank of lieutenant be appointed to begin his duties on June 1.

Supv. John Hansen, Waupaca, who brought up the subject of Mork's "rumored" resignation, recommended that any action on the proposal be postponed until a new sheriff has been appointed.

Annual Salary: The investigator post would have an annual salary of $6,540, plus maximum mileage allowance of $1,800 per year, as proposed by Mork.

The sheriff pointed out that it would cost $6,434 to hire this man, accountable to the law enforcement committee of the county board, for the remaining seven months of 1969. His salary would be $3,865 including $50 holiday pay. This would include $1,050 for maximum mileage, plus radio, red light, pistol, siren and shotgun, totaling $1,518.

Jansen pointed out that "rumors are flying around that you (Mork) are going to resign." Calumet County organization and stated, "If we are going to have a new sheriff, I don't think this body should take any action until a new sheriff is in office."

"Not Official"

"While it is not official, I plan to vacate office on July 1,"

Farm Bureau to Meet

POTTER — Bill Kasa Kaitas, Madison, legislative counsel for the Farm Bureau, will discuss current legislation when the Calumet County organization meets here at 8:15 p.m. Thursday at Salm's Hall.

Mork then declared, adding that "as soon as I am certain. I will notify Governor Knowles and the county board. I will recommend that Undersheriff Loran Frazier become sheriff, and I have been assured that this appointment will be made by the governor."

Hansen countered with his recommendation that any action be postponed because "we have no way of knowing who it's going to be."

He asked for a ballot vote that the sheriff's petition for the investigator post be postponed until a new sheriff is appointed and the law enforcement committee has an opportunity to rewrite the resolution after consulting with the board's salary committee.

The resolution was set aside by a vote of 25 to 6.

Initiation Planned By Clintonville Club

CLINTONVILLE — The Order of Eastern Star will initiate new members at its meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Masonic Temple.

Knowles Declares Flooded Regions to be Emergencies

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An emergency flood proclamation for Wisconsin cities along the Mississippi River was greeted Tuesday by exhausted levee builders with a sigh of relief. Mayor Warren Loveland of La Crosse said the proclamation from Gov. Warren P. Knowles would help qualify the flood-fighting communities for extra manpower to patrol levees, install sandbags where needed, and generally relieve the local volunteers who have been preparing defenses against high water for more than a month.

The National Guard had said it couldn't guarantee much extra manpower for the water fight without some sort of emergency declaration, the mayor said.

He said the State Highway Patrol and conservation wardens told him they might be able to provide 18 men to help watch the seven miles of levees erected in La Crosse. The city could use three times that number, Loveland said.

Several Counties Knowles' proclamation for emergency-aid eligibility applies to Crawford, La Crosse, Vernon, Trempealeau, Buffalo, Pierce, Pepin and Grant counties on the Mississippi.

It also applies to Dunn, Chippewa and Eau Claire counties, where tributaries are falling after having gotten little worse than flood stage, and to Ashland County on Lake Superior, but not to adjoining Iron County where the Montreal River has caused some minor inundation.

Knowles also included St. Croix County on the St. Croix River where Hudson officials reported their city is braced for the weekend flood crest. The St.

Croix is to crest there Friday only a half foot higher than it was Tuesday.

A similar declaration in Washington by the Small Business Administration, applying to the Wisconsin counties and parts of four other states, clears the way for emergency financial aid.

Rep. Vernon Thompson, R-Wis., whose district includes much of the flood-activity area, said Army engineers have already spent $310,500 in southwestern Wisconsin.

Flood waters continued to crawl into traditionally water-prone 4th Ward neighborhoods of Prairie du Chien, whose Mayor Edward Farrell has already declared his Crawford County community of 6,000 residents to be in a state of emergency.

Farrell had issued two appeals to Knowles for a state-level declaration. But most of the Prairie du Chien families affected by high water have already moved in with relatives and friends, an almost annual trek for 4th Ward inhabitants.

The estimated $185,000 which La Crosse has invested in levees is expected to prevent $12 million damage. The levees are built to hold off the river up to an 18-foot level, and the weekend crest is expected to reach to only 16 feet.

Loveland, in fact, said his city needs extra manpower to patrol levees rather than build them. He said the patrols are needed as protection against leaks, and against tourists who inadvertently punch holes with their shoes in the plastic sheeting being used to cover the face of levees.

The only crisis-like excitement in La Crosse related to flooding was Monday night's rescue by

In the depopulated 4th Ward of Prairie du Chien, two youngsters were seen Tuesday making a game of the inch-deep layer of water creeping into town.

They were using coffee cans to scrape up mud for a small levee, and an observer remarked it was the community's first dike. Much of Prairie du Chien is too close to the river for professional levee production to ever provide much defense against high water.

Backed-up Water Also expecting a weekend crest is Alma, the Buffalo County seat which normally has more trouble with backed-up water than with the Mississippi itself. Nearby Cochrane investigated in levees this year to cure the bayou problem.

There have been some precautionary evacuations in that area, notably at Prescott at the mouth of the St. Croix.

The Mississippi stood about a half foot over flood stage Tuesday at Alma, and Saturday's crest is to be less than a foot deeper than that.

The crests are arriving sooner than expected, but too late to trap the estimated 150 Wisconsin families who began making evacuation plans a month ago.

The Weather Bureau said it has had to revise its crest dates primarily because the Mississippi and Minnesota Rivers, which unite at St. Paul, were consolidating their flood crests rather than letting one of the crests get away downstream ahead of the other.

Michigan District Defends School's Segregation

FERNDALE, Mich. (AP)—All 365 pupils in U.S. Grant elementary school are Negro.

The federal Office of Education says it constitutes illegal segregation. The Ferndale School District, the first in the North to be threatened with loss of federal funds, agrees that it's segregation, but denies it's illegal.

The Office of Education issued an order Tuesday designed to force the integration of Grant pupils with about 4,100 children in nine other district elementary schools.

"We know there's segregation," Supt. John J. Houghton said, "but it's of a de facto nature. The school was built to meet an existing need and the population pattern that developed around it resulted in the fact that it is completely Negro today."

Leon E. Panetta, director of the Office of Education's civil rights office, said the segregation of Negro pupils in Grant started when the school was built in 1926 as a deliberate effort to establish and maintain a discriminatory policy.

Houghton said Grant had some white pupils when it opened, but "not a substantial number."

The school is in Royal Oak Township. Aside from a small portion of Ferndale, it is the only area in the school district with a large concentration of Negroes.

The district—comprised of most of the city of Ferndale, Royal Oak, and parts of two adjacent cities—has a total of 8,170 students, 740 of them Negro.

Houghton said one other elementary school has 27 Negro pupils, and two others have one Negro pupil each. The remainder of the Negro pupils in the district attend the junior high school and the senior high school.

Burton Shifman, attorney for the district's school board, will meet with federal officials Monday to discuss the case.

"We have very little disagreement with the facts as the government presented them," he said. "We do disagree with the conclusion that the situation is deliberate."

Sheldon Hochman, president of the school board, said the district now receives $275,000 yearly in federal funds, including $140,000 used for a special education program at the Grant school.

Many residents of Royal Oak have indicated that they believe integration of the Grant school would be a welcome break in a pattern of dominantly Negro settlement that has developed in the township.

"Integration would at least alleviate the feeling of being segregated there," said the Rev. Percy Dumas, a Negro pastor at St. Matthias Lutheran Church in the township.

More Allenton Residents Flee Threat of Blast

Officials Claim Tank Car's Fuel Won't Explode

ALLENTON, Wis. (AP)—More than 300 residents of this Washington County hamlet were evacuated for a second time in 24 hours Tuesday night as firemen struggled to quell flames which still raged today near derailed train cars containing liquid petroleum gas.

One of the derailed train cars was afire, and firefighters recommended the extra evacuation because flames were near two other tank cars which were overturned in a trackside ditch.

However, H. F. Loague of Minneapolis, inspector for the Bureau of Explosives for the Association of American Railroads, arrived at the scene late Tuesday, and said there was no danger of the burning tank car's exploding. Firemen, he noted, were letting gas in the 30,000-gallon car burn without developing explosive pressure.

Loague advised letting the heavier-than-air gas escape and burn rather than let it flow and possibly be ignited elsewhere accidentally. There were still an estimated 5,000 gallons of the fuel in the tank early today, which could mean a blaze until tonight.

Nation's Editors Want Strong Action by Nixon To Fight U.S. Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many newspaper editors advocate strong tactics by the Nixon administration to combat the current inflationary trend.

They recommend cuts in government—especially military—spending, higher interest rates, and wage and price controls, if necessary.

Only a tiny minority, in a cross-section of editors interviewed on the eve of the annual convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, suggested that inflation should be allowed to run its course.

But most thought otherwise.

"Government policies have encouraged inflation; hence, government restrictions should cool it," said Henry MacLeod, managing editor of the Seattle Times.

"There should be cutbacks in government spending—both defense and domestic," said Ernest E. Williams, editor of the Fort Wayne (Ind.) News-Sentinel.

But Williams feels the cut should not affect programs aimed at education, poverty, and urban problems.

"Cut defense spending," said Claude Sitton, editorial director of the Raleigh, N.C., News and Observer.

"Strong Tactics"

Thomas R. Guthrie, assistant to the publisher of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, called for "more of what's been happening recently, plus bringing home money as well as men from Vietnam."

Prisoners in Italian Jails Revolt Again

ROME (AP) — Disorders broke out in two more Italian prisons today.

Police tear gas and clubs drove more than 100 rioting convicts back into their cells in Brescia.

In Ivrea, near Turin, 50 convicts went on a hunger strike, squatting in the prison yard all night. The only woman in the jail also refused food but remained in her cell, the first woman convict to take part in the series of mutinies that started Saturday.

Another revolt hit the prison in Bari Tuesday, on the heel of the Italian boat. About 150 prisoners set fire to the infirmary and the tailor shop, but police finally herded them back to the cells.

Other prisons rang with shouts of solidarity for the rioters who wrecked prisons at Turin and Milan before they were forced to surrender. More than 2,000 of these rioters were transferred in chains and handcuffs to some 20 other jails across the nation, creating tinderbox situations in their new lodging places.

The president of ASNE, Vincent Jones, vice president and executive editor of Gannett Newspapers, said he would favor "any strong, effective tactics by the government, such as higher interest rates, some control on unlimited wage increase—measures like that."

"We need further spending curbs, and certainly tighter credit measures," replied John J. Powers, managing editor of the South Bend (Ind.) Tribune.

"New guidelines, with federal muscle, relating to industry-wide labor contracts would help."

DeWitt John, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, said the government should tighten monetary policy with "a curtailment of governmental spending, and a much more critical look at military appropriation requests."

"I wish I knew how to curb it, but I don't," confessed Ernest Greymond, managing editor of the Baton Rouge State-Times.

"However," he added optimistically, "I feel the administration will bring about some relief."

Another editor who left the answer up to the administration was Elbert H. Baker II, publisher of the Tacoma (Wash.) News Tribune.

Asked if he favored strong administration tactics, Baker said, "Yes—but I do not feel I know the answer. I feel it is up to the administration and its advisers to decide what steps should be taken."

Surtax Continuation
Charles M. Morrow, editor and general manager of the Galesburg (Ill.) Register-Mail, called for a continuation of the 10 per cent surtax "and a sharper eye on military spending, to the extent it doesn't hurt our defenses."

J. S. Gray, editor of the Monroe (Mich.) Evening News, said "Curb inflation by whatever means available to the government."

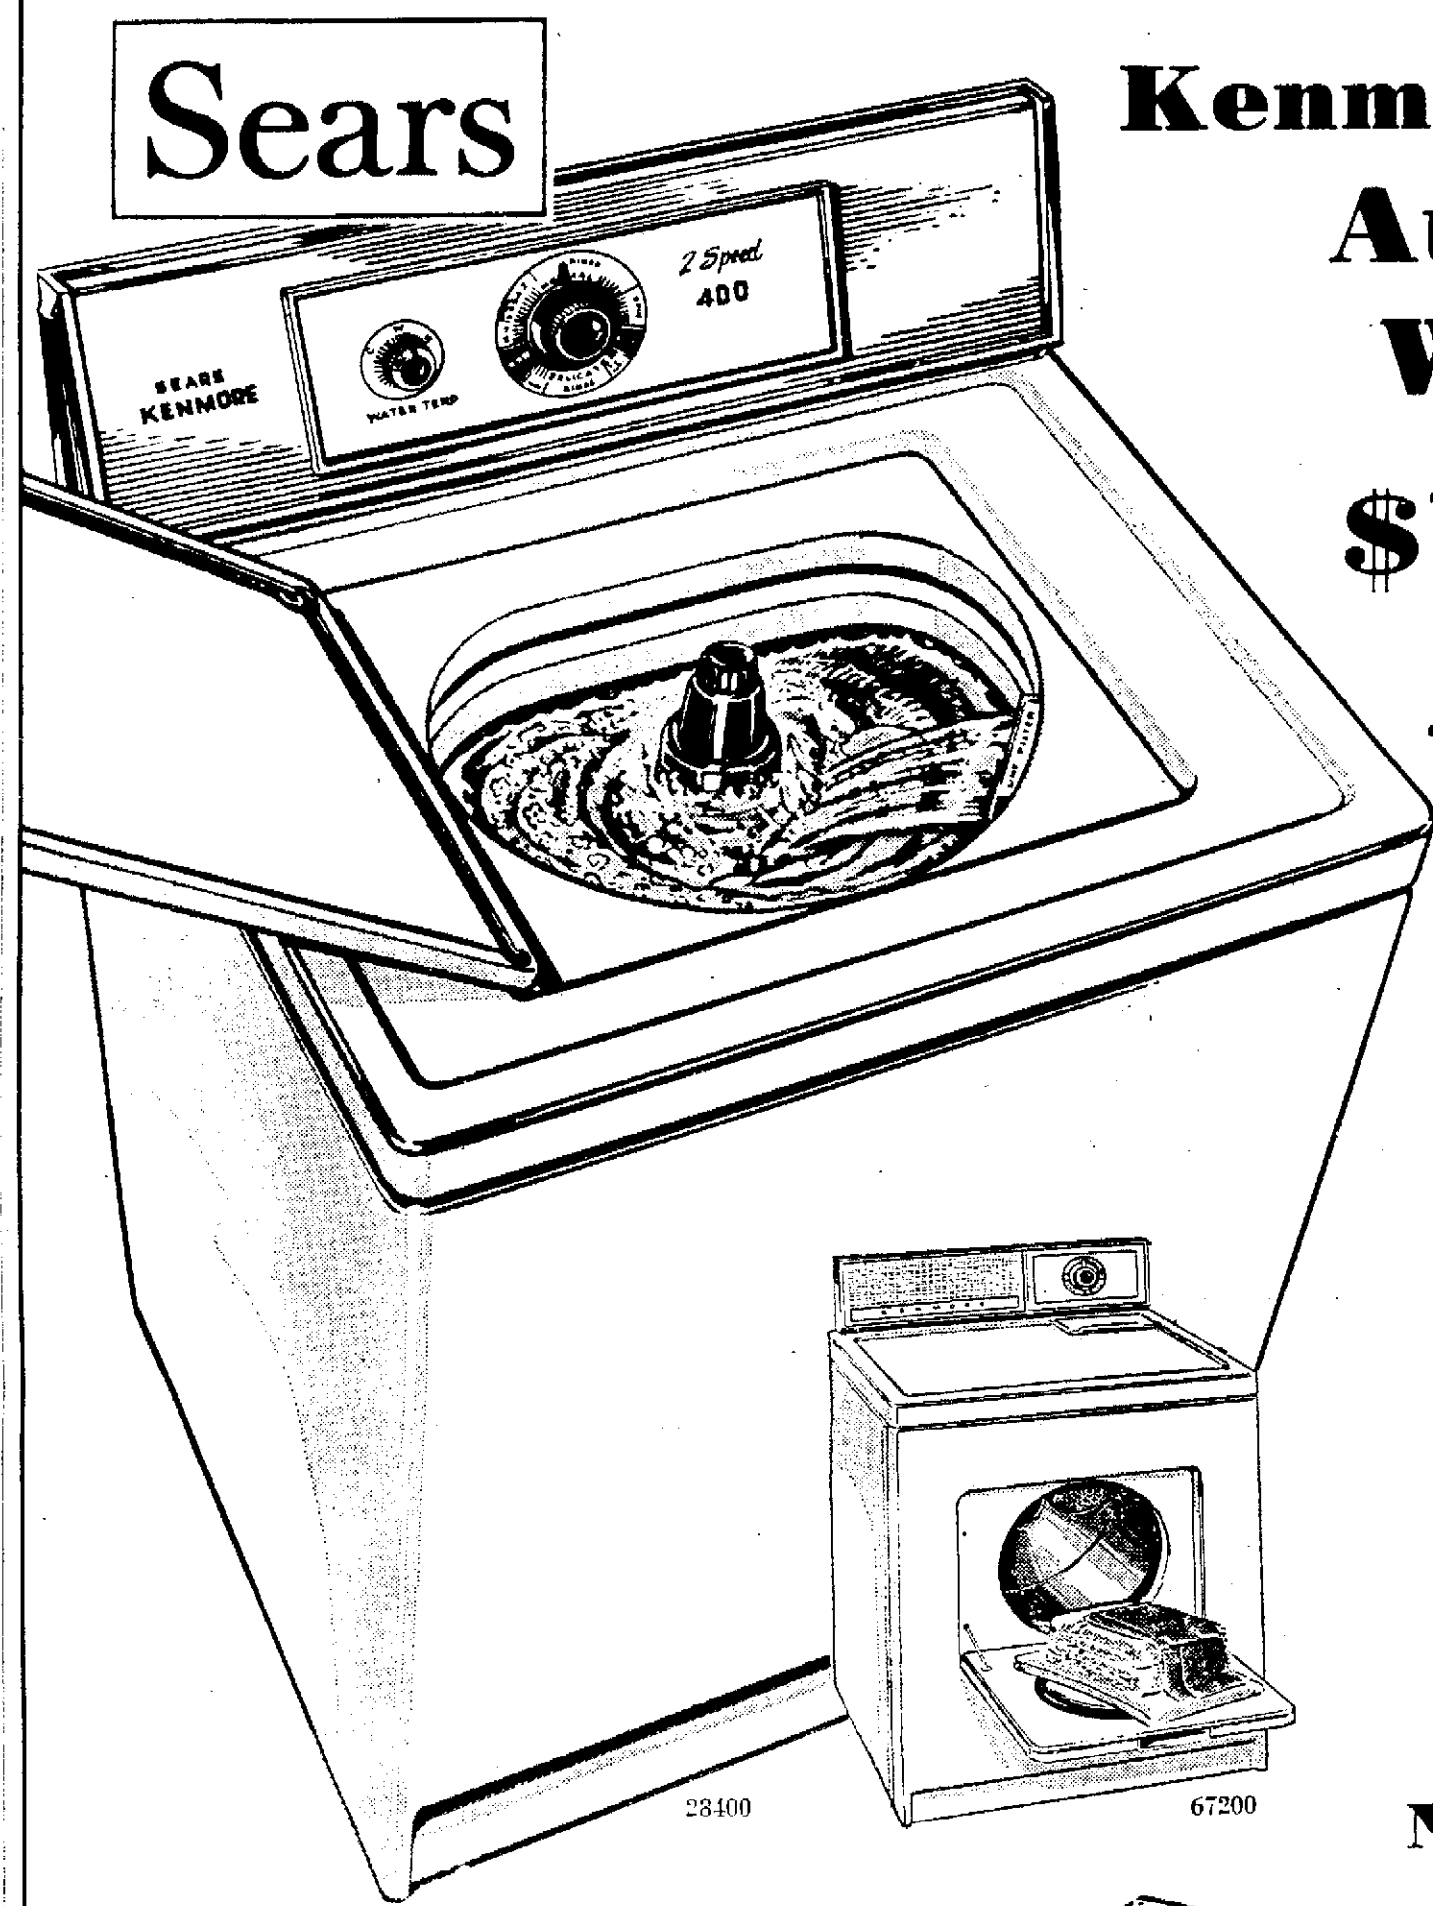

David Gillespie, associate editor of the Charlotte (N.C.) Observer, called for "reasonably strong tactics, but not at the risk of great unemployment or crippling of important domestic programs."

Only two editors of some 50 polled said the administration should keep out of the picture. "Let inflation run its course," said George W. Shannon, editor of the Shreveport (La.) Journal.

"In the end, the law of supply and demand will prevail. Artificial controls should be abandoned. If the economy is to be deliberately curbed, let the federal government set the example by reducing expenses," said William W. Broom, editor of the Long Beach (Calif.) Independent. "Any further tactics risk producing an unemployment level unacceptable in a modern society."
